MYSTERY SEEN IN G. O. P. MUNY JUDGE ACTION

Chairman Says Endorsement of Schettler Sent; Bricker Says None Received.

BEAM MOVE LOOMS

Observers Believe Governor May Have Different Choice For Mansfield Bench.

What happened to the Richland county Republican executive committee's endorsement of H. H. Schettler for municipal judge developed into a mystery today.

Gov. John W. Bricker said he had not received the endorsement although Ralph Hardy, county G. O. P. executive chairman, reported mailing it about 10 days ago.

Don Powers, the governors' secretary, to whom the endorsement was addressed, was out of his office today and could not be reached, but his secretary said she had not seen it and didn't believe it had come to the office.

Hardy explained that he addressed his letter to Powers, marking it "personal," and enclosed a copy of the committee's endorsement for the governor who will make the appointment.

Professed ignorance of the endorsement in the offices of the governor and his secretary led to the speculation here today that pressure may have been applied in Columbus for the appointment of Lydon Beam as judge despite the Republican committee's endorsement.

Beam, who sought the judgeship, is known to carry considerable weight with Powers and influential party leaders here and at the state capital. A number of Republican leaders here were outspoken in their support of him for the post before the committee endorsed Schettler who has served as acting judge in recent years.

Chairman Hardy said that although he was aware that men in the party had backed Beam, he knew of no attempt to over-ride the committee's action.

Gov. Bricker said he probably would not name a judge until about the first of the year. The appointment is for the vacancy caused by the election of Judge G. E. Kalbfeisch to the common pleas court bench. He will take office in February.

BOARD CALLED

Considers Investing $100,000 In City Funds in War Bonds.

To act on a recommendation of City Auditor Paul L. Kelley, secretary, Mansfield's Investment board has been called to meet at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow to consider investing $100,000 of city funds in government war bonds.

Auditor Kelley today served notice of the meeting on Mayor W. J. Locke, ex officio chairman, City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner and City Treasurer Earl K. Troll. Councilman C. N. Shultz's resignation as council's member of the board was accepted by council Tuesday night.

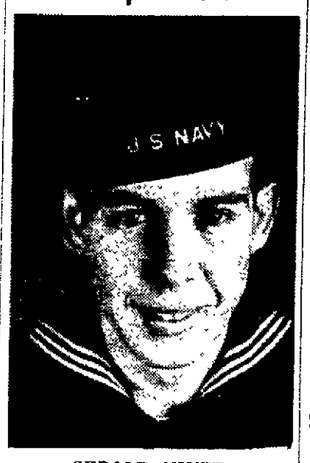
Several weeks ago Locke reversed himself, according to the minutes of the board's first meeting, and opposed a proposal to permit the investment board to buy municipal issues which was defeated in council when Shultz offered a motion for its adoption.

Political observers saw in Locke's lobbying tactics a politically-inspired "patriotism play" by urging the limiting of purchases with city money to government bonds.

U. S. SURVIVORS LAND

LISBON —(AP)— Sixteen American survivors of the American schooner Star of Scotland were deported today to have been landed at Mossamedes, in Portuguese Angola, West Africa. The Star of Scotland was torpedoed in the Atlantic Nov. 13.

His Ship Was Sunk



GERALD MINER

MANSFIELDER SHIP SURVIVOR

Gerald Miner, Navy Radioman, Saw Own Vessel, Three Others Go Down.

Home on 30-day survivors leave, Gerald Miner, Mansfield naval radio operator, today unfolded the graphic account of the sinking of his first ship, the Joseph Hews, and witnessing, from another ship which picked him up, the torpedoing and subsequent sinking of the Ruttledge, the Scott and the Bliss.

All the sinkings were off the coast of Casablanca in the early November African campaign.

"I shall never forget November 11," Miner began, "after having stood watch the greater part of the time from Saturday until Wednesday night, I had just gone to sleep and was 'really dead to the world' when the first thing I knew I was thrown from my bunk and had a couple of fellows on top of me.

"The lights were out, of course, and it was no easy job to find all my clothes in the confusion but I managed to get fully dressed even to sweater and coat. I seemed to sense I would need them all. I got a life jacket too.

"When I finally got on deck, sailors were rushing this way and that but there was no panic. No one seemed to know right then just what had happened or where we had been hit," he continued.

The vessel was hit in the bow on the port side, Miner said, while

Sees Flames In Mirror, Finds Her Own Home's Afire

Mrs. George Armbruster, 527 Forest avenue, arose early today in preparation for a trip to Columbus and as a result probably saved the family home from destruction by fire.

Central station firemen confined flames started by sparks on a shingle roof to the roof and a part of the attic when called to the scene at 7 a. m.

Mrs. Armbruster, while sitting at her dressing table noted a reflection of flashing flames in the mirror and hurried out to notify residents of the adjoining home that their dwelling was afire. Arriving outdoors she discovered it was the roof of her own home, the reflection in her mirror having come from the windows of the neighbor's home.

Mrs. Armbruster immediately awakened other members of her family who fought the flames until firemen under Captain L. R. Zimmerman arrived for their two-hour battle in the near-zero temperature.

Central station firemen were called to the home of Louis Cook, 109 North Adams street, at 8 p. m., Thursday when a chimney burning out caused an alarm to be turned in.

HUNT FUNDS

Brazilian Police Seek Goering's $1,500,000 Bank Account.

RIO DE JANEIRO—(UNS)—Brazilian authorities searched today for a bank account of $1,500,000 formerly held in the name of Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering.

This disclosure came with the announcement that police are proceeding against Alfred Engling, alleged Goering agent, said to have transferred the account to another name shortly after Brazil broke off diplomatic relations with the Axis powers.

BATES HINTS HE'D LIKE TO STAY WITH FBI

But Former Police Chief Waits Official Civil Service Ruling on Leave.

DECIDES NEXT WEEK

Says He'll Be In Mansfield Soon; Other Agents Facing Same Problem.

Intimating that he prefers to continue in government service with the Federal Bureau of Investigation Meade K. Bates, in a telephone conversation from Cleveland late yesterday, told The News-Journal that he had not received the ultimatum from the city Civil Service commission that he must resume police chief duties here by Jan. 14 or forfeit seniority rights.

"I asked the commission," Bates explained, "to rule on the legality of an extended leave inasmuch as several men with the FBI office are confronted with the same problem. I'll be in Mansfield early next week at which time all matters might iron themselves out."

The commission Tuesday night overrode council's grant of a leave of absence "for the duration of the national emergency" under which Bates entered FBI service last January.

Attorney George W. Biddle, commission president, said Bates filed his request last week-end and the commission followed a ruling from the state commission obtained by Member Tom Woodard while in Columbus on other business earlier in the week.

Meanwhile, it has been learned on reliable authority that Woodard acted on specific instructions prompted by activities of one or two outside sources 10 days or more ago.

Action of the commission in ordering Bates' return followed by a few hours an ultimatum by Police Chief Thomas M. Bell against certain forms of gambling.

Bell today reported nothing new in the strained situation. Mansfield's numbers operator halted sales Wednesday, and it was believed that such steps were taken in fear of direct police reprisals and also because of action against Columbus numbers sellers in which OPA

DELAYS ANSWER

FDR Fails to Reply to Query on New Manpower Program.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— President Roosevelt today left unanswered the question of when his new manpower program will be completed and ready for announcement.

Asked at a press conference whether there was anything he could report on the manpower situation, the president said no but repeated his recent assertions that something would develop soon.

In response to another question, he said something would be announced soon on the appointment or establishment of a food administration.

There had been speculation that Mr. Roosevelt might announce the new manpower set-up during his press conference. This belief was based largely on the fact that informed officials said he has abandoned earlier plans for a shake-up in his cabinet.

They Have Part In War Bond Campaign

Senior High Girls to Help In Pearl Harbor Bond Drive

There are 14 happy girls at Senior high school today.

They are the 14 girls who have been chosen to help compile the list of Pearl Harbor Day war bond purchasers that will appear in The News-Journal special edition Sunday, Dec. 13.

The reason they're happy, of course, is that they're going to have a part—an important one—in Mansfield's "Remember Pearl Harbor—Buy Bonds" campaign.

Their job will be that of sorting alphabetically and typing the names of Pearl Harbor day bond buyers. They'll move in and just about take over the news room of The News-Jouarnal Monday, Dec. 7, the day on which all Mansfield is expected to go out and buy war bonds and sign pledges that tell the men in the armed services that they're backing them up 100 per cent on the home front.

Some of the girls will classify the pledges in alphabetical order Others will type the names from the pledges for use in The News-Journal's special edition of Dec. 3—the edition that will carry the names of all those who buy bonds outright on Pearl Harbor day, and all those who have signed up to buy bonds under the payroll deduction plan.

No one has a very definite idea of how many names those high school girls will classify and type—except that there will be thousands of them. To the men in the armed forces, each name will convey a message—that every bond buyer at home is backing with his dollars the efforts of the country's fighting men on the battle fronts.

Here's how the program will work: For the afternoon of Dec. 7, Pearl Horbor day, the regular News-Journal news staff will move out, and the 14 girls will move in. A special sorting bin will be installed, and as soon as the war bond pledge cards are brought in, by a special committee, which will round up the pledges, they'll arrange them alphabetically.

Thus arranged, the forms will be turned over to the girls who will do the typing. The typed sheets will be sent to the composing room, and the list of names set in type, to be print-

CANADA CUTS COFFEE PRICE

Eases Cost Of Living With A Pre-Christmas Gift.

OTTAWA — (AP) — In a pre-Christmas gift to ease the strain of the high cost of living on the consumer's purse, the Canadian government is taking direct action to give the nation cheaper coffee, tea, oranges and milk.

The new assault on the cost of living will be effected by reducing duties or taxes or by outright subsidies.

Coffee is to be reduced four cents a pound, tea 10 cents a pound and milk two cents a quart from current retail prices.

WPB Halts Highway Jobs But Permits Work on Route 30-N

Orders of the War Production board halting 15 highway projects in Ohio and other states due to steel shortages has no bearing on the far-from complete U. S. Route 30-N crossing separation job just west of Mansfield, State Highway Director Hal Sours said today.

Missing the Nov. 30 deadline by the entire north traffic lane, Lombardo Brothers, Cleveland contractors, reportedly are awaiting a break in cold weather to permit construction of temporary links with West Fourth street and the highway continuation east of the Erie railroad subway in order that motorists can use the paved south lane this winter.

Federal and state highway engineers and the highway department had said two weeks ago that Lombardo Brothers would be required to construct the links regardless of the 90-day extension from Nov. 30 which had been asked for in August and which really will extend through next summer from some date next spring.

In their extension plea the contractors told the highway department the job had been delayed 90 days because of government priorities sidetracking the fabrication of structural steel for the B & O railroad overpass and the Erie subway.

Meanwhile equipment from this job, started in July, 1941, was moved to other projects. Highway Division Engineer Vance Grimes said last week that projects in Wayne, Medina and Lorain counties have been held up in similar manner.

None of the engineers could be reached today to determine when links will be built on the south lane of Route 30 to lift traffic out of the mud during the winter and spring months.

CLEAN 'EM UP

Producers Take Shows to the Laundry After Verdict.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Producers of several broadway shows were frenziedly "cleaning up" their lines today in fear they may be next in a purity drive that closed the show "Wine, Women and Song," and placed its producer and managers in jeopardy of jail sentences.

The theater where Burlesque Queen Margie Hart and Fan Dancer Noel Toy did their stuff, was dark last night following the decision of a jury of seven men and five women that their show was indecent.

Miss Hart was quite perturbed by the verdict. "The whole thing makes me sick," she said. "I'm going back to the farm and raise pigs."

Not only have Ford-built Consolidated B-24 bombers started flying away from the airport adjoining the world's largest airplane factory but the company also is shipping completed sub-assemblies to three southwestern plants for final assembly there.

STUDIES FREE PARKING AREAS

Commisioner Boals Says Some Meters To Be Hooded as Traffic Dwindles.

Free parking in certain downtown areas until victory comes or gas rationing ends is forecast in an announcement today by Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals.

Predicting that demands for parking meter reservations in the business area will lessen as motorists exhaust gas tanks filled up last week-end, Boals is making a survey of areas in which meters will be covered up until the war's end or a lessening is ordered in rigid motor fuel regulations.

Although no estimate is available, Lloyd L. Kochenderfer meter inspector, said today, he estimates a 25 per cent reduction in receipts for the coming year. During the 12-month period just ended a steady decline was shown but receipts amounted to around $42,000.

Many meters were frozen by the onrush of winter two days ago, the inspector reported, and the lack of traffic probably was more due to the severe cold than to gas rationing.

Sink Two More Ships on Way Toward Tunisia

Strike Heavy Air Blows at Bizerte, Tunis As Land Forces Re-Group After Costly 48-Hour Fight for Three Strategic Towns.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Allied airmen have sunk two more Axis merchantmen out of a convoy attempting to reinforce Germans and Italians battling desperately in the Tunisian triangle, the British announced today, bringing the Allies' two-day total to nine vessels sent to the bottom along the enemy's increasingly hazardous Mediterranean supply route.

New and heavy blows also were struck simultaneously at Bizerte and Tunis, chief enemy ports of entry, as the Allied land forces regrouped for a new showdown after warding off Axis counter-attacks during 48 hours of bitter fighting in which losses were declared by an Allied spokesman to have been heavy on both sides.

But despite the repeated enemy assault to eject them, the Allies were reported to be in control of two of the towns forming the strategic Tunisia triangle, Tebourba and Mateur, and to be fighting in the western outskirts of the third, Djedeida.

British Middle East headquarters credited the two new sinkings to Allied planes which pounced on a south-bound enemy convoy off Tunisia Wednesday night.

From the Berlin radio came a claim, wholly unsubstantiated from any quarter, that American forces in Tunisia were on the defensive.

Capture of an important position in the battle of Tunisia and seizure of 756 prisoners, including 300 British parachutists, was reported by the Italian high command.

An Allied spokesman in North Africa declared that losses in the past two days had been heavy on both sides and that the edge in the impending test of strength "will go to the one who regains his strength more quickly."

The scene of action was the triangle formed by the towns of Tebourba, Djedeida and Mateur, situated astride the vital railway between Tunis and Bizerte.

Knowing that control of this triangle is the key to the whole situation in Tunisia, the Germans made an all-out attempt to eject the Allies but failed, the spokesman said, though Djedeida—12 miles northwest of Tunis—changed hands several times.

At present, he declared, Allied troops are holding the western part of that town and are in control of both Tebourba and Mateur. Tebourba is about 20 miles west of Tunis and 35 miles south of Bizerte, while Mateur is 12 miles south of Bizerte.

The Allied spokesman estimated that the Germans had about 14,000 combat troops in the battle area and said it was

THWARTED: Japs Lose 9 Ships Trying to Reach Guadalcanal

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—American naval forces, having frustrated a new enemy attempt to land troops on Guadalcanal, thwarted what was believed today to have been a desperate Japanese bid for a lightning victory in the Solomons in celebration of their Dec. 7 attack on Pearl Harbor.

The latest attack was crushed in a sea duel on Monday (Solomons Time) night, but the Japanese were expected to try again to smash American domination of the southeastern Solomons area by the war's first anniversary next Monday.

Naval spokesmen here made no claims of a smashing naval victory on Monday night, although the communique revealed that the Japanese failed to make a landing on the island as planned.

The Japanese lost nine ships in the battle which occurred immediately north of Guadalcanal. To stop the enemy it cost the United States one cruiser sunk and other ships damaged. American casualties were not given and there was no hint of the type of ships damaged.

Enemy ships sunk were two large destroyers or cruisers, four destroyers, two transports and one cargo ship. It was unofficially estimated that about 7,000 men may have been lost from those ships—5,000 troops on the transports and 2,000 sailors.

The battle apparently was on a smaller scale than the two great sea engagements of Nov. 13, 14 and 15 when 28 Japanese warships and auxiliaries were sunk and 10 others damaged.

Since only two of the enemy's transports were sunk, it was revealed the Japanese still have ample reinforcements available for another try at Guadalcanal soon.

The transport force, escorted by units of the fleet, was inter-

FUTILE: Nazis Rush Reserves To Meet Red Onrush at Rzhev

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—Front reports today said that a powerful force of Cossack cavalry has swept deep into the German rear southwest of Stalingrad, forcing the Nazis to evacuate several sections of the Stalingrad-Tikoretsk railroad.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—The Germans were reported rushing ill-trained reserves into action on the central front east of Veilkie Luki and west of Rzhev today in a desperate but futile effort to stop a Russian offensive knifing deep into the Nazi lines.

Front line dispatches said many of the German infantry units being thrown into the fray were hastily formed from the ranks of technicians, engineers or air force ground crews and were led by pupils and teachers from officers' training schools.

The midway communique of the Soviet information bureau said the Germans were launching repeated counterattacks on the central front but declared they were all repulsed and that the Red army's offensive was continuing.

Several thousand more Germans were reported slain in the fighting.

Large quantities of booty were captured by the advancing Russian troops, the bulletin said.

The same communique also spoke of German counter-attacks in the Stalingrad area, but here, too, it declared, the invaders were thrown back, with a loss of some 850 men.

Red Star, official army organ, reported that the last Germans had been driven from the northern part of the Don elbow northwest of Stalingrad and said the Russians were turning their attention to enemy strong points on the

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Tyrone Power, a young fellow with an eye on doing a job well, wound up his picture career for the duration in a blaze of pants-pressing.

Coons

"I might as well get used to this," he told the wardrobe man who was there to mend, clean and press his movie outfits every night after shooting. "I'll take over."

His final picture before becoming a private in the marine corps was "Crash Dive," a submarine war film but, for all that, not bad as a conditioner for the marines' famed Boot Camp for rookies.

Here's why—for the benefit of any who still believe that all movie-acting is a soft snap, including the salary:

TY and company served time at the U. S. submarine base at New London, Conn., and then came home for the "soft" studio work—which turned out to be the toughest part of it. For a full month, Ty's been "submarine cruising" and taking part in a Commando raid.

Now there's nothing especially tough about a movie submarine cruise, unless you happen to have claustrophobia. The big color camera was confined in small set sections representing the control room, torpedo room, ward room and other sections of the vessel. It was like acting in a telephone booth, and guaranteed to bring on the "claustries" if you didn't have 'em already.

The Commando raid, which is a little marine corps specialty, was something else again. It lasted two weeks, movie version, and when Private Power brushes up against another, marine corps style, he shouldn't be too breathless.

He's had a dress rehearsal, at least, and even in the movies it's no pink tea. For days he clambered on hands and knees over rocks, and picked up a neat collection of scratches and bruises. He acted with heavy equipment and a regulation steel helmet, and when you looked at the handsome visage you weren't sure whether it was Power in customary Commando black axle-grease or Al Jolson about to sing "Mammy."

TY turned water baby, too. Had to swim a stretch under water with oil burning on top, and a "double" was out of the question because it was a close shot. Ty didn't face this assignment with the relish you'd expect of a swashbuckling actor. He felt a little shaky about it at first, just as you or I would.

Private Power, when he gets to camp, will have been "under fire" in the movies. A planned explosion crashed the set, which wasn't planned, and flying timbers injured a couple of set workers. Ty, in the thick of it, suffered only temporary deafness.

Declares U. S. 'Quizzers' In for Trouble

EASTMAN SAYS HALF MILLION MEN NEEDED

Declares Transportation Industry Needs Them To Do Wartime Job.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — ODT Chief Joseph B. Eastman predicted today that the nation's transportation industry will have to find and train 500,000 new workers in the next six months in order to continue performing its wartime job.

In some instances hours of work could be lengthened further without detriment to employes, although the industry, for the most part, already operates under a standard 48-hour week, he said. In many cases workers are staying on the job up to the danger point.

Eastman advanced a three-point program of recruiting, training and more efficiently utilizing labor to man the country's trains, buses, trucks, airplanes, streetcars and other carriers. It involves:

(1) The hiring of thousands of women, (2) older workers, at some sacrifice of efficiency, and (3) labor now employed in less essential industries.

The ODT director estimated that the railroads alone will need 168,000 new employes by mid-1943; the trucking industry more than 65,000; air transport, 50,0000; local industry, 38,000; Great Lakes and inland water carriers, 8,0000; taxicabs, 7,000; public warehousing, 4,000; pipelines, 2,000, and other transport services, 11,000.

One of the most critical situations is the maintenance-of-way problem on western railroads where 12 of the largest companies recently reported 14,359 unfilled vacancies among section and extra gang crews. ICC reports showed an increase of 452 derailments in the area the first half of this year.

Eastman appealed to the war manpower commission for the importation of Mexican labor to meet railroad maintenance requirements, but no action has been taken yet. It was reported that the railroad brotherhoods filed a vigorous protest against the use of Mexican labor in such jobs.

Victory Civic Committee To Honor Aviation Students.

The Richland Victory Civic committee will stage its first party for army and navy aviation students at the Mansfield airport Saturday at 830 p. m., in the American Legion rooms.

Earl Saltsgaber, chairman of the committee, said the 72 students at the airport and all other service men who are at home on leave have been invited to participate in the entertainment. Servicemen wearing their uniforms will be admitted with their wives and girl friends, he said.

The program will include a floor show, dancing, and buffet lunch. The entertainment will serve as a "going-away" party for the students at the airport, most of whom will leave this month for advanced training centers, Saltzgaber said.

MONOXIDE KILLS TWO AT CAMP

Two Others In Critical Condition at Massillon Hospital.

MASSILLON —(U.P.)— Two persons died from carbon monoxide poisoning at a tourist cabin at Woodland Inn in Wayne county while two others were in critical condition at a Massillon hospital today.

Gerald S. Schalmo, 26, North Canton, and Miss Emma Dayton, 22, Canton, were found dead yesterday. Highway patrolmen reported Schalmo apparently started the engine of his automobile in a garage between two tourist cabins. His body was found in the car while Miss Dayton's was found in the cabin.

In an adjoining cabin H. B. Cunningham, 45, Brewster, and Bertha Simeth Julius, 36, Canton, were found unconscious and taken to a hospital.

MOUNTAINEERS GET THE IDEA

Learn Quickly in Ohio Farm Training Experiment, Many Get Jobs.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A group of Kentucky mountainfolk who came here 10 days ago to study farming in the modern manner learned so quickly that nearly 50 per cent of them already have been hired to work on high-production, machine-operated farms—the like of which they never saw before.

They learned so quickly, in fact, that directors of a government-sponsored experiment seeking a solution to the farm labor shortage declared this first trial "an entire success," and said they believed the plan "could be worked on a larger scale to provide badly needed labor."

The 58 Kentuckians, most of whom got their basic agricultural training on scraggy garden plots in the rocky hills back home, were used as "Guinea pigs" to determine whether men from sub-marginal lands could be trained quickly to relieve manpower shortages in thriving agricultude areas.

In describing the experiment "an entire success," William G. Winemiller of the farm security administration said the men showed a willingness to learn a style of farming utterly unknown to them and displayed the ability to grasp new problems at once.

Fourteen of the men couldn't stick it out and went home because of "severe homesickness."

After they are hired, the government will help them bring their wives and children to new homes.

EX-BOXER WINS OVERWEIGHT BOUT WITH SEVEN JAPANESE SNIPERS

(By Associated Press)

MARINE FRONT LINES, Guadalcanal —(Delayed)— Barney K. Ross, the game little fighting man who lost two world's championships and never cried "we wuz robbed!," today holds the greatest title he ever possessed. He was called a "damned good marine" by his captain after an overweight match with Jap snipers here on Guadalcanal.

For his undaunted show of heroism in standing guard over three wounded comrades and blazing away in defiance although it was almost certain death to remain exposed to a hidden machinegun nest, Private Ross is now a corporal, and he has been recommended for the Navy Cross or the Army Distinguished Service Cross.

Capt. O. K. Leblanc of Abbeville, La., said "shortly after midnight, two infantrymen armed with another tommygun and a Garand rifle with plenty of ammunition tumbled into Ross' foxhole. It was cramped with three men and three wounded, so Ross took charge, doing all the firing during the night.

"As the infantrymen loaded and reloaded the tommyguns and the Garland, Ross kept his head above the foxhole returning the Jap fire. Between firing he kept shouting to the Jap nest: 'Come out and fight, you yellow—.'

"I figured Ross fired at least 450 rounds He killed seven Japs for sure, and probably 10."

Ross, recovering from effect of the adventure at a base hospital area, had only this to add:

"This damned arthritis is giving me hell."

That's what makes up champions.

ILL FOR YEAR

Mrs. Mabel Rust, 53, Dies at Hospital in Crestline.

CRESTLINE — Mrs. Mabel Catherine Rust, 53, died at Crestline Emergency hospital early today after an illness of a year. She was the widow of Guy Rust who died a year ago.

Born in Hartford City, Ind., May 21, 1889, she was the daughter of Samuel and Mary Tracy Foreman.

She was a member of the Order of Eastern Star, Crestline Methodist church and the Woman's Relief corps.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 4 p. m., at the Robert Beck Funeral home in Crestline with Rev. Olin F. Hull, pastor of the Methodist church, officiating. The body will be taken to Hartford City Monday for burial.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Harry Knell of Middletown; two sons, John, at home, and Howard of the army medical corps, Camp Kilmer, N. J.; one sister, Mrs. Zelda McConkey, Huntington, Ind.; two brothers, Dr. Harry Foreman, Indianapolis, and Howard of Fort Wayne, and one grandson.

WOULD CALL IN U. S. CABINET

Ohioan Proposes Bill to Bring Members Before Congress.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A plan to permit cabinet members to participate in congressional debates has been presented to congress by Rep. William R. Thom (D., Ohio).

Introducing a bill (HR 7842) yesterday to carry out the plan, Thom suggested it would do away with misunderstandings between the executive and legislative branches.

"The indispensable thing of the English parliament, old and experienced in the art of government," said Thom, "is the 'question hour' when in the presence of cabinet ministers, the members of that body turn a searchlight on every nook and corner of the public service."

Up and Down the Street

Some 600 Boy Scouts are curious about whether they will be called upon to serve in the Pearl Harbor alert being staged Sunday evening. So far, air raid wardens haven't told Paul Snyder, Chief Messenger of civilian defense, just how many of the boys they will use. Snyder has 300 trained messengers but says that the rest of the boys are qualified to help if they are needed. Scoutmasters are puzzled too. They wanted to show the efficiency of their scouts, but can't very well if instructions come at the last minute, they explained.

Happy to have been granted final citizenship papers Wednesday night at the citizenship banquet held in John Simpson Junior high school, Mrs. Emma Schmidt left the building with the precious document held high in her hand, but not for long. A sudden gust of wind carried the document down the street into the darkness. A thorough search instituted by her fellow new citizens proved in vain. Mrs. Schmidt returned at daylight the following morning to search the vicinity of Bowman and Fourth streets, but still the valuable papers remain lost. Valueless to anyone else, the brown envelope, decorated with red, white and blue ribbons and containing the certificate of citizenship, is priceless to Mrs. Schmidt.

The Richland Civic Victory committee is having to do some recruiting in the way of hostesses these days what with the girls leaving for training with the WAACs and WAVES. Two more hostesses are leaving the ranks in the near future. Miss Genevieve Buzenski to join the WAACs and Miss Catherine Pfiefer, the WAVES. Miss Buzenski goes Sunday to Fort Des Moines while Miss Pfeifer awaits orders to report at Stillwater, Okla. Betty May Thompson, now a lieutenant in the WAACs and instructor of an administrative specialists' class, was the first hostess to enter the service.

RITES ARE SET

Funeral Saturday For Former Mansfielder Shot By Police.

The body of Harry Donald Parsons, who was killed by a revolver bullet Thursday in Canton when he tried to escape from Marshal Eugene Agnes who sought to arrest him as an auto theft suspect, was returned to Mansfield last evening.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Christian church in Nashville Saturday at 2 p. m., with burial in the Church Yard cemetery.

He was born in Nashville in February, 1912, but had lived in Mansfield until a few years ago when he moved to Canton. Surviving are a brother, Ray Parsons, of Mansfield; and two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Straghbaugh, Cleveland; and Mrs. Allen Unger, of Toledo.

EXONERATED

Marshal Freed in Shooting of Truck Driver.

CANTON —(INS)— Deputy Marshal Eugene C. Agnes today was exonerated with a verdict of Coroner Herman Welland of justifiable homicide in the fatal shooting of Harry Parsons, 33, truck driver.

Parsons was shot when he tried to escape from Agnes when the latter discovered him driving a stolen car. Detective Capt. Norman Van Almen of the Canton police said Parsons had a previous police record of forgery, auto theft, larceny and reckless driving.

BYRD LASHES BUREAUCRATS ON QUESTIONS

Predicts New Congress Will 'Raise Hell' With Leaders, Cut Appropriations.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D) Va., chairman of the special committee investigating government red-tape, predicted today that the new congress in January would "raise hell" with Washington bureaucrats for issuing what he said were "fantastic numbers" of questionnaires on rationing and other wartime regulations.

"One way to get them is to cut appropriations," he said.

Byrd, disclosing that his committee would attempt to learn the names and identities of the government "wizards of quiz" who think up the $64 questions for citizens to answer on rationing forms, added that his committee would have a report for the new congress shortly after Jan. 1.

Meanwhile, it appeared that the bureaucrats in Washington were headed for double-trouble in the new congress, where Republicans and conservative Democrats will have their most potent voice in 10 years of lawmaking under the New Deal.

Not only did the senate approve a resolution authorizing Byrd to proceed with the investigation he had already started (thus placing it on firm legal ground) but the upper branch of congress passed another measure which reportedly caused quite a stir among many workers in wartime agencies. It was a second resolution sponsored by Sen. Kenneth McKellar (D), Tenn.

The McKellar resolution ordered the war production board, the office of price administration, the office of rubber administrator and the office of petroleum co-ordinator, to report to the new congress the names of all persons making more than $3,000 a year. Full details on their background and present work also must be given.

It was believed that the resolution would hit many of the thousand odd government public relations men who generally start their government careers at $3,600 a year salaries.

McKellar also is a member of the Byrd committee, which is technically known as the joint committee on reduction of nonessential government expenditures.

Most bitter protests given to the committee were sounded by farm groups over the present system of gasoline rationing for farm trucks.

Henderson, once one of the most popular government administrators in Washington, appeared to be the chief target of the attacks. He will be called to testify, according to Byrd, who said his committee would resume public hearings next week.

Salesmen to Get More Gasoline, Henderson Rules

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Traveling salesmen today won a long battle with the government to get increased gasoline supplies under the rationing program for occupational driving.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson, acting under the direction of Rubber Director William M. Jeffers, has authorized larger rations for them, but it could not be determined immediately how much the increase will be.

Salesmen now are entitled to "A" and "B" cards which permit 500 miles driving monthly on the east coast rationed area and 560 miles elsewhere.

OPA authorities did not indicate when the new program would become effective. It was estimated that the additional mileage would fall somewhere between that now authorized and the 15,000 miles which salesmen say they cover annually.

W. S. C. S. HAS ELECTION OF OFFICERS THURSDAY

Mrs. Place Re-named President of First Methodist Group; Members Assigned to Circles; Luncheon Served By Guild.

THE Women's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church held its annual election of officers at a luncheon yesterday noon, which was served by members of Grace Guild.

Officers elected for the coming year are: president, Mrs. O. G. Place; vice president, Mrs. Carrie James; secretary, Mrs. Eva Trompson, treasurer, Mrs. Evelyn Auten; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. T. Howe; secretary of supplies Mrs. George Margereta; publication secretary, Mrs. Jay Harding; local church activities, Mrs. John Shook; spiritual life secretary, Mrs. Fern Lincoln; secretary of status of women, Mrs. Frank Rudd and membership secretary, Mrs. L. D. Brown.

Mrs. Miriam Uhl was chairman of the luncheon committee, at the affair at which 65 were present. Christmas decorations were used at the tables which were placed in a "U" shape.

Mrs. Place presided over the business meeting at which members were assigned to their various circles for the coming year. Mrs. Auten had charge of the devotions. She used "The Light Is Shining Into the Darkness" as her theme. The group sang "Joy to the World."

The program director, Mrs. George Hout, introduced the guest speaker, Miss Myra Lorimer, who told a Christmas story, "The Crib of Bo'Bossu." Mrs. Thurza Hazeltine sang several Christmas carols of foreign countries. Circle 6 will have charge of the luncheon and the program will be under the supervision of Circle 5 at the next meeting, which will be held Jan. 7.

Presbyterian Guild, Circles Have Meeting

Guest speaker at the Thursday afternoon meeting of the Women's Guild and the five circles of the First Presbyterian church was Dr. Barr, who told about "The Presbyterian Home at Sidney, Ohio." Many lovely gifts were presented to Dr. Barr for the home. Mrs. B. L. Chase had charge of the program and introduced the speaker.

Devotions were given by Mrs. J. R. Turner and Rev. D. N. Poller. Mrs. John Angle presided over the business session after which Rev. Poller gave an interesting story about "The Modern Wisemen." Mrs. A. L. Linder talked to the group on the work of the Y.W.C.A. A vocal solo, "Ave Maria," presented by Mrs. Charles Anglin, was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. A. Twitchell.

The meeting was concluded with singing of "O Little Town of Bethlehem." Hostesses Thursday were Mrs. Frank Hughes, Mrs. W. R. King, Mrs. A. B. Beverstock and Mrs. J. B. Lindley. Date of the next meeting is Jan. 21.

D. A. R. TO MEET.

Jared Mansfield chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will have a buffet supper at 6 o'clock this evening at the home of Mrs. A. C. Tuttle, 73 Sherman avenue.

Wilcox Class Has Timely Program

Before a lighted star, Mrs. B. F. Hagelbarger recited a Christmas story when 55 members of the J. D. Wilcox class of the First Christian church met at Prospect park pavilion Wednesday evening. Miss Frances Carter sang "Lullaby" and "Oh, Holy Night." "Anniversary," a Christmas story, was told by Miss Jean Shively. The group sang Christmas carols. Lunch was served at an attractively decorated table.

Selection by the Misses Sylvia Warne and Lois Ann Rice was "The Santa Song." There was an exchange of gifts. Committee for the meeting consisted of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hollingsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. James Trine, Mrs. Grace Shipley and Mr. and Mrs. James Rice.

Delta Chapter Gives Shower For President

Mrs. Jack Pealer turned over the office of president of Delta chapter of Gamma Gamma Gamma sorority to Mrs. Warren Ullom at the meeting held last evening at the home of Mrs. W. C. Leonard, Zediker apartments. Mrs. Pealer is leaving soon to join her husband, who is attending officer candidate school in Virginia.

Mrs. John Harrison was associate hostess for the meeting at which plans were made for the program to be given at the dinner of all chapters at the Mansfield-Leland hotel on Dec. 10. Arrangements for filling a Christmas basket to be given to a needy family were discussed. Mrs. Lowell Moore and Mrs. Frank Mengert were appointed to serve as a committee for the "Maudie" dinner to be held Jan. 6. Definite plans will be announced later.

A handkerchief shower was given as a surprise for Mrs. Pealer. Prizes in bridge were won by Mrs. Earl Herrick and Mrs. E. A. Wiener. Former members who were guests last night were Mrs. Howard Yarnell of San Jose, Calif., and Mrs. Walter Graham of Warren.

First Rush Party For New Pledges Held by Sorority

The first of the rush parties for the new pledges of the Zeta chapter of Gamma Gamma Gamma was planned at their meeting last evening, which was held in the home of Miss Frances Brown, West Third street.

The new pledges, who are Mrs. Maxene Williams, Miss Ruth Mengert and Miss Judy Kelley, will be guests of honor at a tea to be given Sunday afternoon, Dec. 6, from 3 until 5 p. m. at the Mansfield-Leland hotel clubroom.

The committee in charge of this affair will be the Misses Jeannette Werner, chairman; Ethel Mae Bogan and Marjorie Hale. Tentative plans were also made for several other parties honoring the pledges.

Miss Marjorie Scott, president, conducted the meeting, at which Miss Lillian Art and Miss Adaline Wilging gave reports on the Christmas basket which the Zeta chapter is presenting to a needy family in this city. During the business meeting tickets were given out for the turkey raffle, to be held Dec. 16.

Following the business meeting, bridge was played and prizes were won by Miss Art, Miss Bogan and Miss Patricia Stuhldreher. Luncheon was served at the close of the evening.

The next regular meeting will be in the form of a Christmas party, Dec. 16. At that time Miss Gerry Fisher, 474 West Third street, will entertain the sorority in her home. Miss Wilging will serve as associate hostess.

Elect Officers At Meeting of Church Society

Mrs. Maria Heinzelman entertained the Ladies Aid society of the St. Paul Lutheran church at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Fischer, 188 Lind avenue, Thursday afternoon, for the meeting to elect officers. Mrs. Phyllis Maul presided over the business session.

Mrs. Maul was named as the new president. Other officers for the coming year are Mrs. William Bailey, vice president; Miss Lina Freeh, secretary; Mrs. Joseph Tans, assistant secretary, and Mrs. H. L. Gilbert, treasurer and pianist.

Christmas appointments were used to decorate the house, and a lighted miniature Christmas tree was used for the gift exchange. Guests were seated at a long table centered with a miniature manger scene. Mrs. Bailey read the Christmas scripture lesson. Prayer was offered by Rev. H. L. Gilbert.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 7, at the home of Mrs. Gilbert, 94 West Third street, with Mrs. Elizabeth Zimmerman as the hostess. The program will be in charge of Miss Freeh.

SANTA CLAUS HAS RAYON in his Christmas pack this year. These are the new opaque versions in black, navy and brown, sparkling but smart, designed by Gotham.

Dear Girls:

You might just as well come down out of that nylon dream castle and make up your mind that you're going to get rayon stockings for Christmas this year and like it.

I've just been getting the low-down from the high-ups in the stocking industry, and I can now report that the promised avalanche of nylon stockings expected to flood the market for the Christmas trade will be a hardly perceptible trickle.

Even if those 3½ million pairs of nylons which the government charged were being hoarded by manufacturers and dealers should be placed on shop counters at one fell swoop, it would hardly make a dent in the national demand. Divide 3½ million pairs of stockings among some 50 million American women who would like to have them, and you come out with about one pair of stockings to every 14 women.

For the last few years the annual consumption of silk or nylon stockings in America has been more than 500,000,000 pairs. That, girls, is a heap of hose.

Roy E. Tilles, president of one of the biggest stocking manufacturing plants in the country, solemnly swore to me that his company has no more nylons. Said he:

"Whatever nylon stockings may be on hand in this country are principally in the hands of small jobbers who made up the so-called 'black market' which OPA nipped in the bud with its price ceiling order. No doubt, if it had not been for this order, women would have been paying $10 and $15 a pair for the few nylons available. In any case the quantity is not sufficient to change the Christmas buying plans of the nation."

A few scattered silk hose are still to be found on shop shelves—but for the most part we'll hang up rayon stockings this Christmas.

Gifts for a Soldier's Sock

By GLADYS DEGNER
(AP Features Writer)

Chances are there'll be some extra men on your Christmas list this year. If you haven't a son, brother or husband in the service, you'll want to remember other friends to whom you might not have given presents were they safely home in civvies. Here are some gift tips any service man would like:

If he's just going into the service, a chain with two clips to hold his identification tags would be a timely remembrance. Sells for $1. More amusing would be a gay little book entitled "A Soldier's Diary" which has room for snapshots, favorite jokes and things he'll want to remember. A good laugh for only $1 of your money. Other inexpensive gifts are: playing cards for his free hours in the barracks, a couple of man-sized bath towels tough enough to take hard wear, or a six months' supply of razor blades, boxed and ready to send for 50c plus a 3c stamp.

Now for a few higher-priced items. There are several useful kits, compactly made up in both army and navy twill. One is as neat as a button—a sewing roll with scissors, thimble, thread and needles. Remember Mom isn't around to do the mending. Another is a first aid kit. Handier still is an apron-like "jeep kit" which ties around his middle and holds all of his toilet equipment. More than likely there's not much space to "park" his supplies in the barracks washroom while he's shaving.

Other suggestions, high on the list of what soldiers and sailors want are cigarets, regulation shirts and socks, wallets with insignia, and polarized sun glasses.

Organist, Choirs To Give Recital

Miss Mabel Zehner will present an organ recital in the First Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Assisting her will be the a cappella choirs of the Senior high school, Johnny Appleseed Junior high school and John Simpson Junior high school, directed by A. Lemoine Derr.

Selections by Miss Zehner will consist of a "Fantasia on Old Christmas Carols" by Faulkes, "The Infant Jesus," by Yon, "Christmas Dance of the Little Animals," by Gaul, "Christmas," by Dethier, "In Bethlehem's Town" by Mueller, "The Virgin's Slumber Song" and "Von Himmel Hoch" by Edmundson.

Christmas songs will be presented by the choirs.

BUSY BEE CLUB.

Bunco was the main diversion Thursday evening when Mrs. Cloyd Fox, South Main road, entertained the Busy Bee club. Prizes were won by Mrs. Iva Ish, Mrs. Clara Calver and Mrs. Bessie Sheets. A lovely luncheon was served late in the evening. The next regular meeting will be a Christmas party at North Lake park pavilion, Dec. 10.

Colored Pictures Illustrate Talk By Mrs. Anson

Mrs. Lois Anson was the guest speaker, Wednesday evening at the regular meeting and supper of the Beta Gamma club at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Anson showed technicolor pictures and talked on her travels through southern United States, West Indies, Nassau, Mexico, and Bermuda.

At the business meeting it was announced that girls interested in bowling should call Miss Eileen Dawson by Monday, Dec. 7, at 6 p. m. if they desire to bowl Tuesday at 8:30. It was learned that open house will be held on Dec. 5 and 19.

The annual Christmas party will be Dec. 16. Committees in charge of the affair are chairman, Miss Betty Lawrence; decorations, Misses Eleanor Laver, Kay Kurns and Cecile Marti; program, Lois Laubscher, Naomi Hamblin and Catherine Schwartz; entertainment, Betty Blackstone, Doris Meeker and Mary Rahal.

Sorority Meets Thursday With Miss Blackstone

Definite plans for the initiation of the new pledges of Sigma Kappa Gamma sorority were completed at the meeting last evening at the home of Miss Dorothy Blackstone, 233 Bartley avenue. They are Mrs. Dale Bryan and the Misses Martha Phillipon, Virginia Moore, Lois Smith and Florence Blanz.

In charge of the informal initiation is Miss Marguerte Boyer, chairman, Miss Doris Kiraly and Miss Helen Desterhaft. The initiation will be Dec. 10 at Johns Park pavillion. The business meeting was conducted by Miss Blackstone in the absence of the president, Miss Ellen Minard.

The sorority paper, "The Tattler," was edited this month by Mrs. Richard James and Miss Minard. The editors for next month are the Misses Kiraly and Blackstone. Mrs. James gave a report on the Thanksgiving basket which was given to a needy family. Guards were ordered for the girls' sorority pins.

A holiday centerpiece and lighted red tapers were used for decorations when refreshments were served from a long table. The next business meeting will be Jan. 7, at the home of Miss Margaret Zimmerman, 396 Grace street.

Miss Hien Weds Wilbur M. Remy

Fred Hien, 100 Helen avenue, announces the marriage of his daughter, Katherine Elizabeth, to Wilbur M. Remy, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Remy, 146 Lexington avenue, which was solemnized Thursday. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer officiated at the parsonage of the First Lutheran church.

The former Miss Hien, a graduate of the New York School of Interior Decoration, is associated with the Studio Gift Shop on Park avenue west. Mr. Remy is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and has been branch manager of the Sherwin-William company in Yonkers, N. Y. He is enlisted in the United States Navy as a petty officer first class and is awaiting a call to active duty.

SOCIETY TO INSTALL OFFICERS ON JAN. 7

Women's Society of Christian Service of Central Methodist Church Elects Executives at Meeting Thursday.

OFFICERS for the coming year, who were elected at the luncheon of the Women's Society of Christian Service at Central Methodist church on Thursday, will be installed at the next regular meeting, Jan. 7.

Those who were elected are: Mrs. E. C. Jenkins, president; Mrs. Harry Iler, vice president; Mrs. D. E. Patterson, recording secretary; Mrs. Frank Ward, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Kenneth Day, treasurer; Mrs. R. K. Clark, social relations and local church activities; Mrs. W. S. Valmore, secretary of missionary education; Mrs. Gilmore Hiett, secretary of literature and publications; Mrs. Stella Reed, secretary of student work; Mrs. J. J. Dunn, secretary of supplies; Mrs. H. D. Bishop, secretary of children's work; and Miss Maude Cunningham, secretary of young people's work.

To open the program, the group sang "America, the Beautiful." Mrs. Jenkins introduced Mrs. R. L. Foulke, who conducted a service in honor of the boys from Central church, who are in the service of our country. The mothers and sisters of the boys who have recently been inducted were presented with corsages.

Devotions were led by Mrs. M. S. Warmack, whose theme was "The Light is Shining Into the Darkness." Mrs. Bishop had charge of the program.

Mrs. Valmore Isham presented two piano solos "Polonaise" by Seifert and her own arrangement of "Christmas Carols." A Christmas prayer by Stephen Vincent Benet, and a story, "Christmas at Nazareth" by Mrs. H. N. Keene, were read by Mrs. Keene. Two musical numbers completed the program, "His Birthday" by Meredith, sung by Mrs. J. C. Stout and Mrs. Retta Bonar, and "Our Lord is Born" by Handel, presented by Mrs. Stout, Mrs. Bonar, Mrs. E. C. Brower and Mrs. L. A. Ogborn. They were accompanied by Mrs. Elsie Ireland at the piano.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Jenkins, president. Reports were given by chairmen of various committees. The society voted to contribute $10 to "The Gideons" for New Testaments to men in service. The meeting closed with a prayer by Mrs. A. H. Au.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Roger Phillips celebrated his tenth birthday Wednesday evening with a party at his home, 246 Sheridan avenue. Fourteen guests were present. A door prize of defense stamps was won by Boris George. Other prize winners were Dean Yeager, Carl Hamman and Tommy Metcalf. Many gifts were received. Luncheon was served at one long table centered with a birthday cake.

Girls to Have Holiday Party, Fill Basket

Plans to fill a basket for a needy family at their next meeting were made at the regular meeting of Assembly, No. 32, Order of Rainbow for Girls, Wednesday, in the K. of P. hall. Miss Doris Scisinger gave a report of the skating party which was held Nov. 27, and stated that considerable profit had been made. Miss Mary Jane Bender reported that plans for the Christmas dance to be Dec. 19 at the Mansfield-Leland hotel are rapidly being completed.

The annual Christmas party will be held Dec. 16. A gift exchange will also be given at that time. Miss Winifred Bauer was appointed to make arrangements and be in charge of this exchange. Miss Dorothy Ohler is to be chairman of the refreshment committee.

Party Given for Mrs. Callihan, Recent Bride

Mrs. Dale Callihan, the former Jean Voyik, was honored at her bridge club Thursday evening, with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Betty Bottomley, 119 Lind avenue. Miss Jessie Bryner served as assistant hostess.

Prizes at bridge were won by Miss Frances Coffman and Miss Mary Thompson, and presented to the honoree. Miss Phyllis Voyik was a guest of the club.

Luncheon was served late in the evening at small tables attractively decorated in patriotic colors of red, white and blue. The bride was the recipient of many lovely gifts. The hostesses presented her with a gift of crystal.

Pfc. and Mrs. Callihan were married Nov. 17 in this city. Mr. Callihan is now stationed at Victorville, Calif., with the United States Army Air corps. Mrs. Callihan is at present residing at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Voyik, 47 Penn avenue.

Don't Let Flaws Get You Down

By MME. QUI VIVE

Some women put up an interesting appearance because of their flaws. Sounds nutty, but it is true. Take Katharine Cornell, for instance. She has a large mouth, of not particularly graceful contour. She has always played it up, using the lipstick with lavishness, making the lips look wider and longer.

A woman I know has a crooked tooth. She wouldn't have it straightened for anything in the world, she says, because it attracted a charming gentleman who became her husband. He considers it piquant, believes it sets her apart from other members of the sisterhood. Believe it or not, it gives her an air of mischief, like a cute child.

We doubt very much if Helen Hayes has ever cried because of her tininess. She's only a little over five feet tall. She has gone far, become one of the outstanding figures of the stage. Her abbreviated stature hasn't kept her back. Yet the wails we hear from the pint-sized gals!

Tall ones, too, send forth yodels of sorrow. The smarties among them make the most of their height. They don't try to nip off a few inches by slouchy carriage. They cultivate the queenly pose, look splendid.

It sometimes happens that when a woman has taken on a little more tonnage than she needs, and can't get rid of it, the anatomical defect becomes an obsession. She thinks about it too much, talks about it to such an extent that she calls attention to it.

There's no reason why she can't be a fashion plate. She has to learn about lines and color, because the right ones can create an illusion of lighter weight and a more slender contour. The V. neck is a help. Long, flowing draperies disguise the curves. Dark colors throw the silhouette into a shadow.

She doesn't have to march in slow-moving traffic. Some of the old timers of the stage were heavy weights, but they moved with grace, joined in the dance.

If a woman has hair of a nondescript color she should locate a clever hair stylist who will cleverly arrange her locks. A chic coiffure is an asset; the color of the hair can't spoil it.

Dyed hair is no longer a disgrace; it has become respectable. No need of making any bones about it. It is only the streaked, badly colored head that is a beauty crime.

White hair is lovely; the woman who has it should play it up by wearing hats of gay colors. Gay colors or black; never dull shades that dim the silver glitter.

Pork Hocks, Cabbage Make Tasty Menu

By BETSY NEWMAN

For an economical dish which gives us our vitamins and minerals we can combine pork hocks, ham butts or corned beef with cabbage.

Today's Menu.

Pork Hocks and Cabbage,
Ham Butt and Cabbage
or Corned Beef and Cabbage
Boiled Potatoes
Carrot and Apple Salad
Cranberry Pie Coffee

Pork Hocks and Cabbage.

1 hock for each person
Cabbage, quartered
Salt, Pepper

Brown hocks in skillet, season with salt and pepper, add 2 cups water. Cover and cook gently for about two hours, adding more water from time to time as needed. About 15 minutes before serving time, add quartered cabbage and cook until cabbage is tender. You can cook the potatoes with the pork and cabbage if you wish.

Cranberry Pie.

Pastry for 2 crusts
¾ to 1 qt. cranberries
½ to ¾ cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter

Wash berries well and drain thoroughly. Mix sugar, flour and salt. Line pan with bottom crust, sprinkle it with 1 or 2 tablespoons sugar and flour mixture, dot with 1 teaspoon butter, then pour in berries, sprinkle with rest of sugar and flour, dot with butter, cover with top crust and bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) from 35 to 40 minutes. If crust gets too brown at this temperature, lower it to 350 and bake more slowly.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Georges was losing no time, I thought sardonically, as I went through the camouflaged door and closed it. My father looked at me with an understanding smile.

"What Richard would call a fast worker," our friend Georges," he said, "and I must pay tribute to the way you handled that situation. Of course, you gave Mary her cue while you were out in the hall?"

"Yes, I did," I answered, "but I believe she would have recognized him anyway. Her eyes are very keen, you know."

"Yes, I know," he said, "and her sympathies are just as keen.

"Georges is a far more dangerous menace than Redfield to Noel's peace of mind," my father went on, voicing my own thought. "Redfield is common underneath his veneer, and a savage, beside his inordinate conceit. He never would appeal to Mary, even when using him to arouse Noel's jealousy.

"But Georges has every quality in the world to appeal to a woman. And the life of peril he is living is the strongest card in his pack."

"I know it," I said dolefully, "and I am afraid Georges intends to play all his cards. I thought at first that Olina was the attraction, but I am afraid I was wrong."

"Wait and see," my father advised. "Just now, Mary's forbidden fruit, but he has known Olina all his life, and they were once betrothed."

"And Olina loves him, I am sure," I said, then flushed and added, "but I should not have told you that."

Glimpse of Tableau.

"Remember, I'm as safe as a church," he said smiling, "so don't distress yourself about that slip. But I think you should immediately tear Georges away from Mary. Tell him I wish to see him at once, but don't let Mary leave for a few minutes. I have a plan I shall broach to Georges, then if he approves I shall leave the details to you."

As I hurried through the bedroom I came upon an interseting tableau. Mary and Georges were on their feet and he held her hands tightly clasped in his.

"Tell me," he was intoning, "are you happy? That thought has been in my mind ever since I first saw you in the theater, and later in the company of that impossible bounder, Redfield. Why did you permit him to accompany you to a public place like that?"

"Do you think a private one would be better, Georges?" Mary demanded, and her mirthful voice reassured me. At least Georges' romanticism was not affecting her seriously.

But I was furious at Georges. Despite my assurances, he was questioning Mary about Redfield.

I picked up a stick of wood from the fireplace and let it fall noisily. Then I moved into view of the living room and saw Mary and Georges sitting decorously in chairs as I had left them.

"I am sorry to hurry you, Georges," I said, "but my father is waiting for you. Go through the next room, and that door you see at your left. I shall have a chance to see you later."

He rose and took Mary's hands and kissed them, then mine.

"Au revoir," he said, and went.

"And now, young lady," I said severely, as soon as the door had closed, "give an account of yourself."

BRIEFS

Mrs. Gayle Strang was hostess recently to the Sew-What club at her home on North Spring street. An informal program was given. Later a lunch was served. At the next meeting the annual Christmas exchange will be featured.

* * *

Mrs. C. E. Sturm was hostess to the Tuesday Evening Bridge club. The usual three tables were in play with scores being saved until the end of a series of games.

The Misses Olive and Laverne Lifer entertained a group of girls at their home on Nashville road recently with a "kid" party. Games were played and prizes were given.

The oil of cashew nuts is the best lubricant for certain plane-motor parts because of its high heat-resisting qualities.

Meeting Held by Journey Club

Plans were made to give the usual Christmas donation when members of the Journey club were entertained by Mrs. Weston Cutter at the home of Mrs. O. C. McCormick, Stewart avenue, Wednesday evening. During the business session members heard reports from the "Buy a Bomber" committee and the Red Cross appeal for blood donors.

The program topic was "Australia." Mrs. Milo Hieber gave interesting current events. The club sewed during the afternoon on a relief project. Tea was served from a table centered with yellow and white flowers. Mrs. J. A. Lewin presided at the table. Hostess for the Dec. 16 meeting will be Mrs. H. S. Jones, 81 Parkwood boulevard.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, December 5

MODERATELY good prospects are found in this day's lunar aspects, with the promise of the approbation or perhaps more solid support of elders, superiors or those in influential places. But the rules of the game, with proper recognition of public ordinances and regulations, must be borne in mind lest there be some rather drastic reprisals or penalties. The private life also requires prudence and discretion. There is a sign of something secret, behind the scene or of an intriguing nature in both public and private affairs.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of moderate success and fulfilled ambitions, possibly largely due to the wholehearted support of superiors, elders or those in influence and high standing. Nevertheless there must be strict observation of proper methods and tactics, with rules and regulations properly held in mind. This applies to private as well as business contacts. An undercurrent of the subtle, intriguing or curious lies at the root of all affairs, and must be averted.

A child born on this day should have fairly worthy and progressive traits and talents, with mediocre benefits or recognition, but may run into peculiar or strange adventures which may turn the tide for weal or woe.

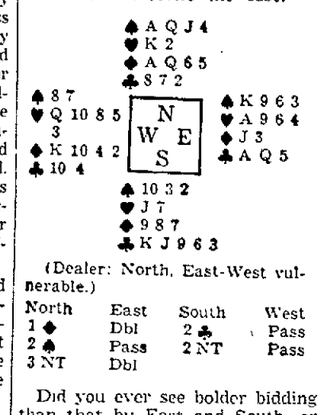
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TOO EARLY OR TOO LATE

HOLDING up your sure-winner high cards until just the right time is a vital fundamental of No Trump play, just as important to the defense as to the declarer. If you play them too early or too late, you smooth the path for your opponent. Coming in quickly with a high card, so you may promptly start another suit, sometimes decides the issue. On other occasions, deferring its use until you block the enemy's remainders of the suit can settle the case.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Dbl	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Dbl

Did you ever see bolder bidding than that by East and South, or more timidity than West showed? The latter was even timid about leading his own suit, hearts, so opened the spade 8, sure East must have it in good shape.

When the spade 4 went on from North, East played his 9, the 10 winning, and he held up the K again when the J was finessed. Next he ducked the club 8 and the J won a finesse. The spade 3 to the A brought a second club lead. Now East came in with his club A, took his spade K and heart A and led the heart 4 to the K. South then ran three more clubs and the diamond A, refusing the finesse but getting nine tricks.

East had two chances to beat this contract. One was by coming in promptly with his spade K and opening hearts, while he still had the club A for a re-entry. The other was by holding up on clubs until the third round, thereby killing the rest of South's suit. East was too late with his spade K and too early with his club A.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable).

If East bids 1-Diamond and South 2-Spades on this deal as an interference bid, what should West do?

Choirs of Three Schools to Give Sunday Musical

First Christmas musical program for the public will be staged Sunday at 4 p. m. in the First Presbyterian church by 450 Junior and Senior high school choir pupils under the direction of A. LeMoine Derr.

As an impressive processional the combined choirs will come down the church aisles singing "Silent Night." The Johnny Appleseed group will then offer a French carol, "Sleep of the Infant Jesus." and Simpson pupils will have as their selection, "O Quit Your Pastures." Together the 350 voices will join in "Dona Nobis Pacem."

Miss Mabel Zehner, organist at the Presbyterian church, will be featured on several solos and is to accompany the choirs for some of their numbers.

Sixty boys and girls composing a Junior high ensemble will have as their pieces, "Panis Angelicus" by Frank and "Dodo" (Slumber Song) by Riegger.

Climaxing the afternoon program of Christmas music the works of Noble Cain will be sung by the 100 A Cappella choir members at Senior high school. Selections will be, "Music of Life," "Ole Arch's a Moverin'" and "Ode to America." The entire group will then join in singing the carol, "Joy to the World."

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Perhaps you're getting a little bit weary reading day after day of the transportation problem confronting high school athletes. But it's still the biggest story of the day in high school sport, and the problem is far from solution in spite of brave declarations from most of Ohio's high schools that "We'll carry on."

Which may remind you of that old song: "But who's going to carry Carrie, when Carrie can't carry any more?"

The Sandusky high Blue Streaks yesterday became the first team on the Mansfield schedule to cancel its basketball program for this winter. So far as I've been able to learn, Sandusky is the first large Class A school in Ohio to take this action.

The announcement on the press wires yesterday said Sandusky had cancelled its cage schedule "because of inability to provide transportation for its team."

They've got the same means of transportation that we've got, and that all the other schools in Ohio have," was Tyger Tutor Vern Hoffman's first reaction.

"But if they want to be the first to quit, it's all right with me," Vern continued. "They were scheduled here on a Tuesday night, and the loss of that game won't hurt our schedule much.

"But they still owe us a game on the second half of a two-year home-and-home contract. Maybe we should collect from them for our trip to Sandusky last year, and then call the whole thing off."

At first blush, it would seem that the Blue Streaks, confronted by the same problem faced by every other high school, had changed the color of their streak.

But there may be other factors entering into their decision. The Streaks play their home games in the big Sandusky junior high gym where the district tournament has been held in recent years.

And it will be remembered that Sandusky announced last spring that it would not be host to the tournament this year, because the junior high gym was being taken over for the duration by the government for the recreational program of the Plum Brook ordnance plant.

"We are making our trip to Columbus tonight in private cars whose tanks were filled before gas rationing went in effect," Hoffman said today.

"How we will get to Elyria next week I don't know yet, but we'll get there. Newark comes here next Friday night, and Newark has informed me that three men in the athletic department have been granted B ration books to take care of their transportation. And Findlay coaches told me they were given C books."

Well, well. If this war has done nothing else, it is teaching educators their ABC's.

Members of the athletic department of Ashland high school didn't even put in a bid for B and C ration books, reports Bill McKee, the Ashland scrivener.

"They aren't convinced that's the way to meet the problem, nor that it is the proper thing to do," says McKee. "They know that there's a war on, and that there is a critical shortage of rubber."

To me it seems that the issuing of B or C books to coaches for transportation of high school athletes should depend on how important to the war effort the continuation of high school athletics is considered.

CAPITALS WIN IN OVERTIME PERIOD

INDIANAPOLIS —(U.P.)— Jerry Holota's overtime period goal Thursday night enabled the third place Indianapolis Caps to defeat the Buffalo Bisons, western division leaders, 4-3, in an American league hockey tilt.

The Washington Lions, third in the eastern division, played a 5-5 deadlock with the Cleveland Barons, last place team of the western division.

GETS 34 POINTS

BOWLING GREEN—(AP)—Thirty-four points—15 field goals and four free throws—were contributed by Forward Wyndol Gray of Akron, as his Bowling Green University's teammates defeated Bluffton college, 57 to 33, in a season opening basketball game last night.

Frankie Attains His Goal

Made All-America and Keeps His Promise.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—One of the few football players who ever set out avowedly to gain All-America recognition and attained that goal is Frankie Sinkwich, the heavy-hipped University of Georgia back. He's a unanimous choice this season after being almost universally acclaimed last year when he was a junior. He is the least surprised of all over the way his unique ability is being emblazoned in the headlines. His goal ever since his freshman year has been the position he now holds as the outstanding football player of the year.

On Dec. 8 he will receive the Heisman memorial trophy here in New York emblematic of his place at the head of the football ranks, as a fitting climax to an utterly spectacular career. A native of Youngstown, O., he is as beloved in Georgia as a native son, and bears none of the stigma that might be associated with one of them dad-burned Yankees from north of the Smith and Wesson line.

Last season, that is in 1941, he won the poll among the college players as the most valuable player in the game, while leading the South in virtually every department of play despite a broken jaw and a face held together by baling wire a good part of the time. Just before Georgia came east to play Columbia, he said to the Georgia publicity staff:

"I intend to make All-America. You get me the publicity in New York and I'll do the rest."

He helped to beat Columbia, he got All-America recognition virtually everywhere and, if he missed out here and there in 1941, he has more than made up for it in 1942.

Anybody who would leave him off current teams would be regarded as completely daffy.

He brought Georgia along to a season spoiled by a single defeat—the one perpetrated by Auburn—and when he gets in the Rose Bowl on New Year day against the Pacific Coast conference champions, he will show those far westerners a thing or two, or three. If he doesn't it will be because they've got him tied down.

He didn't get any broken jaw during the past season, and he wound up the year with a new modern record for yardage gained from running and passing, was mentioned in the South among the all-time greatest of players, and may yet wind up with a statue of himself in the middle of Athens, Jogia. That's a heap better than Sherman or Grant could do.

That's a lot better than many another football player has been able to do deliberately in pursuit of All-America honors. Sinkwich couldn't have done any better even if he had stayed in his native Ohio.

That he has been an improvement this year even over the nearly superlative Sinkwich of 1941 is proved by standout ability as an all-around performer as he comes to the finish of his career. His passing has reached a new peak and really was the thing that beat Alabama when all else had failed.

Looking ahead to the Rose Bowl game, the 90,000 customers there on New Year day will be watching one of the greatest performers ever to come out of the South for the annual classic unless the coast conference's ultimate champion figures out some way to stop him. In that case they might even beat Georgia, but they still will have to stop the running and the passing of Sinkwich first, and they should remember he is a determined young man. He set out to make All-America and couldn't be headed away from that goal.

DIMOUT SPELLS END OF NIGHT BASEBALL

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Dimout regulations announced for Philadelphia effective Dec. 21 today sounded the death knell of night baseball in Shibe park, home field of the Phils and the Athletics, National and American league teams respectively.

The night tilts will be banned, it was understood, because it is impossible to screen floodlights to the satisfaction of army officials.

Lightie Title Fight Booked

Larkin-Jack Winner Will Be Recognized.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The winner of a Beau Jack-Tippy Larkin 15-rounder on Dec. 18 will be recognized as world lightweight champion by the New York commission, Chairman John J. Phelan announced today further confusing the vexing titular tangle brought about by the recent retirement of Sammy Angott as title-holder.

The winner of the match is bound by $1,500 forfeit to meet the survivor of an elimination tournament within 60 days to clinch the crown beyond all dispute insofar as the New York commission is concerned.

Today's action virtually reversed what the commissioners said was a misunderstanding of plans made in conjunction with the National Boxing association last week.

On that occasion supposedly the winner of the Beau Jack-Larkin match had been selected to meet the survivor of a tournament for the title, instead of being given the crown on the basis of the one fight on Dec. 18.

The commission said the tournament would start on Dec. 18 and that meantime participants would be asked to post forfeits binding them to a place in the eliminations.

Fighters who are expected to participate include Cleo Shans, Chester Rico, Juan Zorita, Ritchie Lenos, Roman Alvarez, Allie Stolz, Willie Joyce, Joey Peralta, Bob Montgomery, Carmen Fatta, Terry Young and Slugger White.

All eliminations will be at 15 rounds with the first to be staged Dec. 21 between Shans and Rico.

H. Stauffer Leads Westie Keglers

Marital Rift Seen In DiMaggio Family

RENO, Nev.—(U.P.)— Mrs. Joe DiMaggio, former actress Dorothy Arnold, is in Reno today, presumably to establish residence to permit filing a divorce suit against her husband, the hard-hitting New York Yankee outfielder.

Miss Arnold has engaged an attorney, but she refused to allow him to discuss her business in Reno. The attorney, Joseph P. Haller, confirmed that he had been retained by her.

At San Francisco, DiMaggio said he knew nothing of reports his bride of three years intended to sue for divorce.

The DiMaggios have one child, Joe DiMaggio III.

They Rule as Favorites In Miami Open

JOHNNY BULLA JUG M'SPADEN CLAYTON HEAFNER

Because of his record-breaking 63 in a practice round, Jug McSpaden of Philadelphia ruled as favorite in the $5,000 Miami Open golf tourney, only money event of the winter. Others expected to contest for the top position are Johnny Bulla of Atlanta and Clayton Heafner of Linville, N. C.

Football Had Freak Plays

Illinois Guard Scores Twice on Minnesota.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

NEW YORK—(AP)—Two players caught their own passes, a guard scored twice in one game and a tackle once carried the ball for a six-yard gain during the 1942 football season, which produced enough upsets to drive the fans crazy but didn't confine all its dizzy doings to the final scores.

These and other oddities were uncovered today in an Associated Press survey of the nation's gridiron goofiness.

Probably the prize oddity of the year came in the Illinois upset of Minnesota when an Illini guard, Alex Agase, scored two touchdowns on plays that originated with the Gophers snapping the ball. Agase first stole the ball from Bill Daley on the dead run and didn't stop until he had crossed the goal line. Then a bad pass from the Minnesota center scooted into the end zone and Agase pounced on it for another touchdown.

Big Six conference passers did all sorts of peculiar things. Ray Evans of Kansas tossed a pass against Iowa State, but it was batted back and he caught it himself for a one-yard loss. Royal Lohry of Iowa State pulled the same stunt against Villanova, but lost much more ground.

Bob Steuber of Missouri hurled a pass intended for Marshall Shurnas in the Oklahoma game. The ball struck Shurnas on the head, bounced back to the line of scrimmage and was intercepted by Oklahoma's dub Lamb.

It was in the game between Texas A. and M. and Texas Christian that Wayne Cure, an Aggie tackle, caught the ball on a field goal attempt and rambled back for a six-yard gain. When T.C.U. played Texas, the ball changed hands on three successive plays—all fumbles.

* * *

It took the snow to stop Fullback Tony Butkovich of Illinois when the country's No. 1 team, Ohio State, failed. Butkovich caught State's kickoff on his 20-yard line and ran through the entire Buckeye team. He was in the clear with no one near him when he ran out of bounds on the three-yard line, after going 77 yards. Snow, which Tony thought was the boundary line, had blown onto the field and he was out by a foot. He got the touchdown on the next try, however.

See Usual Crowd For Rose Bowl

PASADENA, Cal.—(INS)—The New Year day Rose Bowl game will attract the usual capacity crowd of 93,000 customers despite the edict of Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director, to limit ticket sales to outside areas, Tournament of Roses officials declared today.

Rose Bowl authorities said they would cooperate fully with the ODT request and pointed out that they have made no effort to attract people from distant parts.

"We are confident the Rose Bowl will be filled as usual," James K. Ingham, president of the association stated. "We assume the ODT does not intend to exclude a delegation from the University of Georgia, the southeastern representative."

* * *

Ingham said that the usual 5,000 tickets, allotted to the visiting team, have been sent to the southern college.

BAUMHOLTZ WEDS

NEW PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Frank Baumholtz, once basketball star at Ohio University, was honeymooning today with the former Bettie Bell, Cleveland school teacher. They were married at Midvale. Baumholtz now is an ensign and played with the Great Lakes Naval Station basketball and baseball teams last season.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—You can put whatever value you want on Berlin radio announcements but the folks who have been hollering that we ought to give up sports because of the current shortages of players, transportation and equipment may be interested in a recent item snatched from the airwaves. . . . The Berlin announcer reported that no fewer than six international sports events are scheduled in Europe next Sunday. . . . We pick the Italians to take the boxing meet. They've been getting plenty of roadwork in Libya.

HAD THE DOPE.

A copy boy on an Indianapolis newspaper won the office football pool a few weeks ago by picking Iowa to beat Wisconsin. . . . One of the losers couldn't understand . . . "Didn't you know Wisconsin was undefeated and had tied Notre Dame?" he asked. . . . "Sure," replied the kid, "but those Seahawks are tough."

SERVICE DEPT.

Bill Menke, former Indiana U. court star who paced the Great Lakes quintet last season, is playing this year for the Olathe, Kan., naval reserve air base team along with Grady Lewis and Don Lockard, formerly of the Bartlesville, Okla., Oilers. . . . Aviation Cadet John W. Bohrman, jr., who played on the Cornell football team that won and lost that famous "fifth down" game against Dartmouth two years ago, tells pals at Mather Field, Calif.: "They'll never revoke any scores I hang up in this contest. I'm playing this war for keeps."

CLEANING THE CUFF.

Jane Ann Jones, known as one of the most capable executives in minor league baseball, has resigned as secretary-treasurer of the Columbus Red Birds to become Branch Rickey's personal secretary at the Dodgers' office. . . . After a long tussle with the AP poll on football "trends" this dept. is convinced that the season's outstanding trend is the one you can't take to the bowl games.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Romney Wheeler, Associated Press: "If Bill Terry takes over the Phils, the government's travel curtailment won't bother him at all. . . . The Phils weren't going anywhere, anyway."

GET THE POINT?

Recent "it-oughta-be-a-record" notes reaching here report that Capt. Tom Billingsley of Fredericksburg, Va., James Monroe high made 23 successful placement kicks for points after touchdowns during the past season and Wayne Waters of Manson, Ia., scored 19 straight extra points by plunges.

Trophy Awarded To Boston College

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Boston college today was awarded the Lambert Memorial trophy, emblematic of the Eastern Intercollegiate Football championship.

Despite a 55-12 defeat by Holy Cross in their last game, the Eagles received 46 out of a possible 58 votes. It was the second time in the seven-year history of the trophy that Boston college has won the award. The Eagles also won it in 1940.

* * *

Pennsylvania placed second with six votes and Penn State third with three.

MEL HEIN BECOMES COLLEGE COACH

NEW YORK —(INS)— Mel Hein, for 12 years the iron-man center of the New York pro football Giants, donned the robes of a college instructor today.

Hein will serve as physical education instructor and football coach at Union college, Schenectady, N. Y.

New Englander Leads Tourney

MIAMI, Fla. —(U.P.)— Ben Loving, New England PGA champion from Long Meadow, Mass., held a one stroke lead over the field today at the start of the second round of the 19th annual Miami open golf tournament over the Miami Springs course.

Loving fired a four-under-par 66 on the first leg of the 72-hole medal play event yesterday. Struck out behind him was a field of 93 professionals and amateurs seeking the title abandoned by Byron Nelson.

One stroke back of Loving came Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia, clubhouse favorite to cop the $1,000 war bond first prize in the $5,000 tournament.

Willie Turnesa, former national amateur champion, took time off from his duties as chief specialist at the Hollywood naval gunnery school to shoot a pair of 34's. His 68 was good for third place.

LIKES FRESHMEN

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Coach Hank Scanlon doesn't want to "pop off," he says, after only a year of college coaching—but he does know five good reasons why his underdog Holy Cross Crusaders were able to smash vaunted Boston College in the season's biggest gridiron upset.

Four of the reasons, he explained, are freshmen.

And the fifth, which he traces directly to frosh is team spirit.

STEADY TONE DISPLAYED BY STOCK MARKET

Sharp Increase in Public Spending Reported For Present Week.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks displayed a relatively steady tone in today's early market proceedings.

At a quiet opening gainers of fractions included Warner Bros., American Can, Consolidated Edison, U. S. Steel, Kennecott and Standard Oil (NJ). Slightly lower were Texas Co., American Telephone and Goodrich.

Followers of retail company shares found satisfaction in the Dun & Bradstreet survey reporting a sharp jump in public spending this week.

Federal reserve board figures, on the other hand, indicated last week's department store sales for the nation slipped 2 per cent under the like 1941 period.

PICK OFFICERS

Ohio Recorders Elect Youngstown Man President.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— James M. Elliott, Youngstown, yesterday was elected president of the Ohio Recorders association in its 15th annual convention. He succeeds Fred J. Methers of Zanesville.

Other officers elected included Second Vice President Lowell W. Varmilion, Newark, and Secretary Richard O. Wilson of Lisbon, both re-elected; Gertrude Dietrick, Napoleon, treasurer, and Russell W. Barnhill, Findlay, chairman of the legislative committee.

DREAM UNFORTUNATE

BUENOS AIRES —(U.P.)— Marcelin de Tesei has found out that dreams can be half true. She dreamt that her life savings were stolen from a Postal Savings bank. Next day she withdrew her funds, and a thief snatched her pocketbook, with all the money, as she left the bank.

MANSFIELDER SHIP SURVIVOR

Gerald Miner, Navy Radioman, Saw Own Vessel, Three Others Go Down.

his quarters were against the same side of the ship toward the back.

"After my eyes got adjusted to the darkness, I saw one sailor running around wearing only a pair of shorts. I decided he needed my sweater worse than I. On the other side of the ship, I saw about 50 wounded men being removed to life boats and started to lend my hand in assisting when some steel girders broke loose, crashed past my legs and struck amid the wounded men. I think all but two had been rescued by that time.

"I went on deck again, grabbed a rope and went over the side. I was soon picked up by a landing boat, then transferred to a destroyer and later another ship from which I witnessed the sinking of three other vessels, the Ruttledge, Scott and Bliss. Two days later we docked in Casablanca waiting there for a convoy to accompany us to the states."

Miner, a graduate of St. Peters school in 1940 and a former Westinghouse employe, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Miner, 480 Sloan avenue. He enlisted in the navy Jan. 28, having received his "boot training" at Great Lakes, Ill., and his radio work in San Francisco and Los Angeles. Radios are kept silent during disasters, he explained, with signals being used to report distress.

"I'm a lucky boy to escape this experience without even a scratch," Miner concluded, "I only hope that I will draw as good a ship, captain and crew in my next voyage at sea and I'm ready to go back anytime."

Women's Dresses May Be Made of Lava, Petroleum

PITTSBURGH—(INS)—Step right up ladies, and take a look at these new dresses made from the purest petroleum and the finest lava. Just peek through this microscope and look at the marvelous crystal structure in this little number.

Fantastic? Well, not according to Dr. Howard E. Fritz, director of research of the B. F. Goodrich company, who said that's the way sales will be made in the future. He explained that there are 164 synthetic fibres made from milk, lime, coal, air, water and oil at the present, and "all this presages a new selling technique."

"The sales person behind the counter will no longer be able to define quality by saying that an article is all-wool or pure silk," he declared.

"More likely the seller will place a microscope or spectrascope into the buyer's hands and say: 'Just look at that crystal structure, Madam; the dress is 100 per cent pure petroleum,' or 'this little number is made of pure lava, direct from a volcano'."

He added that synthetic rubber is here to stay, and that improvements will be made along with parallel reductions in price as time goes on.

JURORS SAVE RUBBER

MONROVIA, Cal.—(U.P.)—For the purpose of saving rubber a system of local volunteer jurors is being put into effect here. Jurors will volunteer in each locality so that they will be on the spot when called and will save not only tire mileage but the usual mileage fee allowed by law for reporting for duty.

URGES FARMERS TO SAVE FENCES

O.S.U. Engineer Says War Will Make It Difficult to Buy Woven Wire.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Because of the shortage of metal due to the war effort, Ohio farmers are advised by I. P. Blauser, extension specialist in agricultural engineering at Ohio State university, to take immediate inventory of their farm fences and use all possible measures to preserve them.

It already is difficult to buy new woven wire fencing in some farming sections, Blauser pointed out. Farmers presumably will have to do without barb wire for the remainder of the war.

A great deal of depreciation in fencing, Blauser said, is caused by permitting fences to sag so livestock can reach over and ride the fence down. He urged that farmers replace missing posts or those which are rotted off, and put in extra posts where there are too few now to properly support the fence.

Many Ohio farmers, the specialist said, are trying out single or double wires charged with electricity to solve their fencing problems. However, Blauser warned that such fences must be properly built and that the electric current in the fence is controlled with a good safety device.

DRAFT ENDS SERVICE

BLUE CANYON, Cal. — (U.P.) — The draft has played hob with postal service at Blue Canyon. When Postmaster Joseph H. Hankansan was inducted into the army, no one could be found to take his place. Henceforth, residents will obtain their mail at Emigrant Gap.

BATES HINTS HE PREFERS FBI

But Former Police Chief Says He's Waiting Official Ruling of Board.

agents seized the gas ration books of the sellers.

Bell early this week ordered the suppression of up sheets and other cash-paying gambling devices. He also ruled that bingo cannot be played commercially and indicated he will order police to act on warrants for the arrest of operators and others and the confiscation of gaming devices, leaving it to the courts to decide if the play is to be members only for a regularly chartered club.

In discussing the commission's ultimatum to Bates, Bell today had only praise for his co-worker whose services have been "commandeered" by the government, declaring he would in nowise hamper his return to the chiefship, but doubted if Bates would of his own volition desire to relinquish his federal duties until the war's end.

PICK DIRECTORS

Fair Board Meets Saturday To Organize For Year.

Five directors of the Richland County Agriculture society, sponsor of the county fair, will be elected at the organization's annual meeting Saturday at 1 p. m., in the probate courtroom at the courthouse.

R. D. Hale, secretary of the fair board, said he would submit a tentative financial report for 1942 and the society would discuss plans for next year.

Members probably will be asked for opinions on the advisability of replacing the grandstand at the fairground which was destroyed by fire last Sunday, Hale added.

Directors whose terms expire this year are A. C. Weiser of Plymouth township; Clarence Tugend, Worthington township; John Kochheiser, Perry township; Walter Shaffer, Troy township, and L. L. Rinehart, Sandusky township. Directors are elected for three years.

BOND-POSTER BOY'S REALLY A GIRL BUT SHE'S STILL GOOD AD

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Linda Peterson doesn't know it but she's a male impersonator and a good one.

She can lay it all to a mistake which began when Oscar A. Doob, a Loew's theaters executive, saw her picture in a photographer's window, and decided it was just the kind of picture for use in the motion picture industry's one-week war bond drive which opens Dec. 7.

Linda is two years old now. But she was only ten months when Georgia Avery photographed her. Doob got permission from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Peterson, to use her on a poster and Miss Avery waived the usual professional fees.

Doob thereupon sent the picture to the treasury department. The posters were printed with Linda saying "please give us little guys a chance . . . buy another war bond."

And under her likeness was the caption: "Make sure he grows up a free man!"

Then it was discovered that Linda was not a boy. But it was too late to do anything about it.

So Linda will be seen in front of 16,000 theaters next week, and also on the screens in a trailer plugging the Pearl Harbor commemorative drive.

ALLIES RIP NEW AXIS CONVOY ON WAY TO AFRICA

Sink Two Supply Ships as Land Forces Re-group After Costly Fight.

evident they "intend to stay in Tunisia until the last possible moment."

"The Germans always have derided the British for Dunkerque," he added, "and maybe they are out to prove they are ready to die for the fuehrer."

An Allied communique told of continuing Allied air attacks on airdromes at both Tunis and Bizerte, and said that especially heavy damage had been done at the former, with many enemy aircraft destroyed on the ground.

A spokesman of the 12th U. S. Air Force reported that American airmen alone had shot down five enemy planes in combat Wednesday and destroyed three on the ground. Twenty-one more were damaged, he said—six in combat and 15 on the ground.

Considerable Axis aerial activity also was reported over the battle area, with Nazi divebombers making repeated attacks on the Allied positions.

In one instance, dispatches from the front said, Allied fighters intercepted a Stuka formation, drove it off and forced the Germans to jettison their bombs on their own troops.

Comparatively little ground fighting was reported in southern Tunisia, although an Allied spokesman said that American patrols there were "being a damned nuisance to the enemy."

The part being played by the British Mediterranean fleet in keeping reinforcements and supplies from reaching the Germans yesterday was emphasized by Allied headquarters in North Africa yesterday in reporting that the royal navy had sunk three destroyers and four merchantships bound for Tunisia.

Report U. S., British Enter French Colony

LONDON —(INS)— The Rome radio asserted today that British troops from the Gold Coast of West Africa and American forces from Liberia have crossed the borders of the Ivory Coast and entered that French West African colony.

The Italian report, heard by Reuter's, was not substantiated by word from any reliable quarter.

Switzerland Has More Air Alerts

LONDON — (INS) — Air alerts were sounded during the night at Berne, Neuchatel and several other localities in Switzerland, it was reported today.

Alarms sounded in Switzerland usually indicate a Royal Air Force raid on northern Italy or southern Germany but there was no immediate word of whether an attack had taken place.

The alerts lasted from 9:15 until 9:45 p. m.

Axis Loses 3 Planes To One In Tunisia

AN ADVANCED ALLIED AIRDROME IN TUNISIA—(INS)— Axis fliers, confronted by the cream of United States and British empire pilots, today are losing three times more planes than the Allies.

The American and British airmen go into the air many times in a single day in the practically continuous round of aerial duels.

In the intense air activity Axis planes constantly harass the Allied positions hammering communications lines by day and pounding forward landing fields by night.

Describes Battle on Teboura Front.

UNDER GERMAN FIRE AT THE TEBOURBA FRONT (Delayed)—(AP)—American and British infantry and tanks drove forward into battle about four miles east of this shell and bomb-shattered little town today in an assault against strong German positions bristling with machineguns.

As I wire this dispatch the Nazi Luftwaffe still seems to have a free run of the African skies.

The battle started at dawn after the Germans had fended off light assaults with mortar and machinegun fire and made divebombing attacks on the Allied troops.

From my observation post at the front I watched German formations of Stukas and Messerschmitts—half a dozen or more at a time—blasting a British position about a mile away from here.

The Germans came over regularly every 15 minutes and the last time I looked out the doorway of this hut I saw five swastika-marked bombers dive. While I watched 10 bombs fell from the belly of each plane and a moment later the ground rocked and the roar of the explosions came over the hilltop, followed by smoke.

Despite their heavy bombing the Germans have been unable to blast the Americans and British from their forward positions three and four miles to the east.

But the machinegun and bombing of the Nazi planes and the deadly accurate fire of the German mortars has made this area a roaring, rocking hell since dawn.

I arrived at Tebourba after driving the last 35 miles without seeing a single airplane. We found Tebourba smashed. It looks like the Hollywood movie version of a [illegible] after a World War bombardment.

The Germans held cleverly concealed positions on the hilltops surrounding the battle area, but it was believed the Allies had massed enough men and material to overwhelm them.

Italians Claim 300 British Captured

ROME — (By Official Italian Wireless) (INS) — The Italian high command claimed today that an Italian Alpine battalion in Tunisia had captured more than 300 British paratroops while their German Allies were taking 454 prisoners, including 18 officers.

An Italian hospital ship, the Citta Di Trapani, was said to have been torpedoed and sunk in the central Mediterranean.

"Of 120 persons on board, 104 including all nurses were saved," the high command asserted in its daily communique, adding, however that there were no wounded aboard.

British planes "flew over" several places in Sicily, the Italians said, but only "two civilians" were wounded. One enemy plane was said to have been shot down by anti-aircraft fire, crashing near Augusta.

"One of our own planes, commanded by Capt. Farina sank an enemy submarine," the communique added.

GRIEF'S BRIEF

Believes Son on Lost Transport, Then Encounters Him.

HILLSBORO — (INS) — Harry Woods, grief - stricken when he heard a news broadcast yesterday, was happy beyond words today. His radio brought him news that five army transports had been sunk in the battle for North Africa. The crew of one of them, the Joseph Hewes, included his son, Hugh.

Woods left the house for a walk to be alone with his sorrow. Almost the first person he encountered was a young man in navy uniform —his son, Hugh, home on furlough.

east bank holding open the jaws of the pincers squeezing the Nazi siege army.

For the third successive day the Soviet information bureau, in its early morning communique, announced that Russian troops had driven the Germans from a strategic height on the left bank of the Don northwest of Stalingrad.

Southwest of Stalingrad, where the Red army is reaching out another encircling claw, Russian troops were said to have slain 1,200 Germans and destroyed 28 blockhouses, 13 tanks and 90 trucks.

The Russian air force, meanwhile, was reported to have destroyed 50 German planes in the Stalingrad sector—including 40 big transports used for ferrying reinforcements to the front.

On the vital central front, where a mounting Soviet offensive threatens the whole German position, the Russians said they had overcome stubborn enemy resistance to make a new advance west of Rzhev, which is 130 miles northwest of Moscow.

Report 34 High Nazi Officers Dismissed

(By United Press)

Thirty-four field marshals and generals of the German army have been dismissed in the last three months and some have been arrested, the secret German army anti-Nazi radio station Gustav Siegfried Eins said today.

Among those dismissed, the station said, are Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock and Field Marshal Ritter Von Lieb, formerly among the chief commanders on the Russian front; Col.-Gen. Fran Halder, former chief of staff of the high command; Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian, the army's chief tank expert, and Field Marshal Erwin Von Witzleben, who formerly held a chief command on the western front.

Halder has been confined to his home the station said.

Others reported dismissed are Col. Gen. Ernst Busch, Col.-Gen. Adolf Strauss, Col.-Gen Hans Reinhardt, Col.-Gen. Lindemann, Col-Gen Schmitz and Col.-Gen Hubert Weise of the air force.

Soviets Say 14,000 Nazis Die at Kalinin

MOSCOW — (AP) — Red Star said today that 300 Soviet rifle experts on the Kalinin front had killed 14,000 Germans, the most successful being Sergeant Yesakov, who bagged 354.

The article did not say over what length of time this happened.

250 Attend Yule Frolic of Central Ohio Traffic Club

Two hundred and fifty members of the Central Ohio Traffic club, and their wives and guests staged their annual Christmas party at the Mansfield-Leland hotel last night.

Highlight of the dinner program was a description of the bombing of London during the 1941 "Battle for Britain" by W. H. Barnes, foreign freight agent of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Presiding at the dinner was E. L. Morgan, jr., president of the club. Music for dancing was furnished by Bob Meyers' orchestra. Chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements was Tom Dorsey, of Norwalk Freight Lines.

Barnes, in his account of the air war in Britain told how the British government had insisted on air raid drills long before the German bombers opened their attack, and recalled that most Britons thought the idea was "silly." But when the bombs began to fall, and the precautions ordered by the government had saved countless lives, the people realized that value of the training they had received, he said.

"There was much the same belief in Britain that now exists in this country—people just didn't believe they would be bombed," Barnes said. He paid high tribute to the courage of Britons, and said that after weeks of bombing the people had became so hardened to the incessant attacks that they only went to air shelters when the bombs came close.

Mrs. Malcomb Strelitz, Marion, led community singing.

Roosevelt Orders Liquidation of All WPA Projects

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt today ordered complete liquidation of the work projects relief program.

The president, in a letter to Major General Philip B. Fleming, federal works administrator, said the WPA rolls had greatly decreased through the "tremendous increase in private employment, assisted by the training and re-employment efforts of its own organization, to a point where a national work relief program is no longer necessary."

Mr. Roosevelt ordered the closing out of all projects operations in many states by February 1, 1943, and in other states as soon thereafter as feasible.

Mr. Roosevelt said certain groups of workers still on the relief rolls may have to be given assistance by the states and localities, others would be able to find work on farms or in industry at prevailing rates of pay as private employment continues to increase.

Plans were being perfected today for the city's first test mobilization of civilian defense forces Sunday at 7 p. m., when the pledge forms will be delivered to every home in the city. Starting immediately after an air raid alert at 12:25 Monday, the city's four banks will handle no other business but war bond sales. Bonds will also be on sale at the Ohio and Madison theaters, the Mechanics Building and Loan company, the postoffice and the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

James Eberly, of the Junior Association of Commerce, who is co-chairman of the Pearl Harbor day bond sale campaign, today asked all Mansfielders to avoid unnecessary use of their telephones on Sunday between 7 and 7:30 p. m., the time of the test mobilization, so that air raid wardens and other civilian defense workers can make vital calls.

'DEEP TALK'

FDR Says He and King Will Converse Over Week-End.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Prime Minister W. H. MacKenzie King of Canada arrived at the White House today for a series of week-end conferences.

President Roosevelt said he and King planned to spend a quiet week-end talking about a great many things, including some of the deeper problems of humanity and human life in the days to come after the war.

The president added that he and King were remembering that the people of the United States and Canada have essentially the same problems. Their discussions, he said, concerned objectives rather than details.

MURDERER ASKS NEW TRIAL

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Henry Locke, 43-year-old Columbus Negro slated to die in the electric chair for the shotgun slaying of two Negro women, today had filed a motion for a new trial in criminal court. Locke was convicted of first degree murder on two counts last Tuesday by a three-judge court.

ICE CREAM? SURE YOU'LL GET IT

Propaganda For Freezing The Freezing Of Moo-Juice Stymied.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Relax, kids. That ice cream cone propaganda is licked.

Government officials indicated today that Uncle Sam has no intention of freezing the freezing of cream. Despite the national milk shortage,— nobody will have to scream in vain for ice cream because the multi-flavored frigid moo-juice is a food and not a confection. Sources close to Agriculture Secretary Wickard said he probably would recommend that ice cream production be restricted next year to about 75 per cent of the 1942 output.

A century ago American sheep yielded an average of only two pounds of fleece; now the average is eight pounds.

JAPS THWARTED IN THRUST AT GUADALCANAL

Lose 9 Ships in New Attempt To Gain Victory For Dec. 7 Anniversary.

cepted by a U. S. Navy task force in the waters just off the north coast of Guadalcanal. The American vessels waded in evidently just in time to prevent a landing. The navy's communique did not mention whether the enemy fleet withdrew, but it was understood that it broke off the engagement and left the area.

Tokyo's version of the battle—usually exaggerated—was that the Japanese had sunk an Allied battleship, a heavy cruiser and two destroyers. Their own loss, the enemy claimed, was a destroyer. This is no evidence that battleships participated in the action.

One of the Japanese destroyers sunk was of the latest type. Japanese sailors rescued from a life raft the day after the battle said they were from the Takanami, built too recently to be included in Jane's "Fighting Ships." It was believed to be a 1,500 tonner.

The latest battle raised to at least 51 the number of Japanese ships sunk in the four-month old battle of the Solomons—two battleships (one possibly a heavy cruiser); 10 cruisers; 21 destroyers (two of them possibly cruisers); 17 transports and one cargo ship.

American losses in the Solomons are 26 ships—two aircraft carriers, six cruisers, 13 destroyers, four transports and a fleet tug.

The battle last Monday night was the first major action in the Solomons since the Japanese suffered an ignominious defeat on Nov. 13, 14 and 15. Land action on Guadalcanal for more than a week has been confined to minor patrol work.

Tells Story of Pacific Rescues

By WILLIAM HIPPLE

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOLOMON ISLANDS—(Delayed)—(AP)—The Japs have fled.

They made another desperate attempt last night and early this morning to land troops and equipment on American-held Guadalcanal island. Again our naval forces threw them back.

As I write this, four large Japanese transports lie beached and burning on the northwest coast of Guadalcanal. We understand our naval forces, including battleships and aircraft, have been pursuing the remainder of the Japanese transports and supporting warships, and that many enemy ships have been sunk.

Today I hopped into the second seat of a seaplane piloted by Lieut. (JG) Hubert (Patches) Perry, of Phoenix, Ariz. We had orders to pick up survivors. Over the battle area, the water was a mass of oil littered with boxes, cans, shell cases, life rafts, life jackets, pieces of lumber and other debris.

We covered the outer area between the northwest tip of Guadalcanal and Savo island. Many landing boats and whale boats picked up survivors while they were thicker to the east.

The first live man we saw was a Jap clinging to a raft. We went low and waved we would pick him up. The Jap sailor hid behind the raft, probably thinking we were going to shoot him. We circled again and once more he dived.

Pilot Perry then gave up trying to save the Jap and continued looking for our own men. On another trip Lieutenant Perry had stopped to pick up a Jap. The Jap tried unsuccessfully to smash a wing with a club. So now Perry is wary.

We soon saw our first American sailor in the water. He was waving weakly. We waved back, then circled, and taxied to him. Lieutenant Perry taxied the plane forward and spotted another man. We repeated the procedure. He, too, grabbed my leg and managed to crawl onto the pontoon.

We took a total of 10 aboard.

U. S. Troops Continue Guadalcanal Mop-up

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Supported by army fighter planes, American troops are continuing routine patrol activities on Guadalcanal island, the Navy announced today.

On Thursday, island time, our patrols killed 14 Japanese. The ground forces were supported by Army fighters on five attack missions, the Navy said.

21 More Jap Planes Out of Pacific War

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — (U.P.) — Twenty-one more Japanese planes were out of the war in the South Pacific area today, all destroyed on the ground in Timor, as bitter ground fighting continued in New Guinea.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's air force made one of its most successful raids on the enemy's air base at Kupang, Dutch Timor, leaving 18 Japanese bombers and three fighters damaged or destroyed.

Today's high command communique reported intermittent ground fighting in the Buna and Gona zones on New Guinea, with continued artillery and air support for the Australians and Americans tightening their grip on Japanese garrisons.

The air force sank two barges of Japanese troops off Gona—apparently meager reinforcements brought two nights ago in the enemy's abortive attempt to put ashore fresh troops with destroyers.

Allied forces on New Guinea spent yesterday methodically wiping out machinegun nests and snipers on the fringe of Japanese defenses around the Buna mission and at Sanananda point, where further advances though only a few yards, were made.

Artillery fire pounded Japanese-occupied villages of Garara and Suriral, in the Cape Killerton area. At least one enemy anti-aircraft gun was blown from its pit.

Southeast of Buna, Allied forces had occupied half of the Cape Endaiadere area. Fighting was still underway along the northern shore and the exact line of battle varied.

Dares Jap Guns to Save Navy Flier

GUADALCANAL, Nov. 15 — (Delayed) —(INS)— Second Lieut. W. E. Houf of Athens, O., dared gun fire from Jap shore patrols and strafing from Zeros today to save the life of a downed navy fighter pilot, Lieut. A. D. Pollack.

The doughty marine, who was watching from the shore, saw Pollack's plane waver, then glide down to the sea in a crash landing. Almost immediately, Houf said, Pollack's plane tipped over and sank.

Jumping into a rubber boat, the type pilots use, Houf started rowing to the rescue of the fallen pilot, a distance of about 8,000 yards.

Pollack fell near Cape Esperance, almost opposite Kokumbna, a Jap stronghold, and within easy shooting distance of both pilot and rescuer.

When Houf arrived at the site of the crack-up, Pollack was drifting in his lifebelt. His feet were propped up on his parachute apparatus and his head almost under water. Houf said Pollack seemed stunned and partially unconscious.

Pulling Pollack into the two-man rubber boat, Houf started the long row back to shore. The tide was against him and it took almost three hours.

Gen. M'Nider Injured By Japanese Grenade

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA—(INS)—Impatiently awaiting the earliest opportunity to return to the battlefront, Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider, former U. S. assistant secretary of war, today is recovering in a military hospital from injuries suffered when he was hit by a hand grenade on the Buna front in New Guinea Nov. 24.

(The war department in Washington announced yesterday that Gen. MacNider had been injured slightly in action.)

The tough, lean 53-year-old veteran from Mason City, Ia., was with a United States task force ground unit engaged in bitter fighting around Buna when he was ambushed by Jap soldiers.

MEN AND SHIPS WIN IN BATTLE TO DELIVER ORE

Great Lakes Fleet Sets New Mark in Delivering Huge Shipments to Cities.

By ROBERT J SERLING
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

CLEVELAND - (UP) - America is winning a battle of vital importance thousands of miles from the actual fighting fronts

The battle is a struggle against human fatigue, insufficient equipment and time and is being fought on the waters of the Great Lakes that fringe the heart of midwestern America.

The victory belongs to the men and ships of the lakes ore fleet—a combination that has just about exceeded the most gigantic goal ever set before an American transportation system.

The ore fleet this year faced the enormous task of carrying 90,000,000 tons of iron ore from the mines of northern Minnesota down to the ports of the Great Lakes - Cleveland Detroit, Chicago, Toledo Buffalo—and on the fleet depended the bulk of the nation's steel production.

It can now be reported that the fleet has virtually clinched success. By the end of October, the ore carriers had transported 83,858,620 tons and that lift them almost two full months in which to attain the 90 000 000-tons goal set before them by the Office of Defense transportation last spring

The officers and men wear no gold braid and medals and no admiral's daughter or senator's niece launches the awkward, sturdy ships they sail But their victory is no less important even without the trimmings

Thanks to them the steel mills of the midwest and east ate receiving the iron ore that's digested in roaring blast furnaces and spewed out of the war plants in the shape of tanks, guns, planes and warships

To meet the goal the ore fleet has relied on approximately 300 regular carriers, plus a number of freighters ordinarily used in transporting automobiles from Detroit to Buffalo for shipment to the east, and several new ships.

Even with this imposing shipping equipment there was some doubt last spring whether the ODT's quota would be met. The ore fleet had to strain to meet the 1941 goal of 80 000 000 tons and there were many shipping men who privately predicted failure

But the ore fleet already has passed the 80 million mark and is well on the way to the 1942 quota Although the tonnage carried in December will be less than the preceding months because of weather conditions, shippers don't anticipate too much of a drop.

While the ore fleet doesn't have to worry about enemy torpedoes and dive bombers, there still has been an element of danger present on the unruly unpredictable lakes Early this fall the fleet lost one of its carriers in a storm The Steelvendor foundered in Lake Superior when its cargo shifted in heavy seas

SHEEPSKIN HAS MORE WARMTH

Airmen Prefer Natural Wool Inside Their Jackets at High Altitudes.

DAYTON - (UP) — Shimmering silver fox fur might have added a touch of glamour to the cold-weather outfits of the U. S. air corps, but warmth was the goal so the more plebeian sheepskin won out.

Since 1929 the army has conducted exhaustive experiments on every type of winter clothing. Frank G. Manson, chief of the parachute and clothing division at Wright Field tried rabbit, bear, beaver, and even the wolverine, on the basis of wear, moth resistance, and warmth, the sheep shearling was found to have no equal.

Eliminating all other furs, the air corps began testing fur-tanned electrified sheep shearling and continued the development of that material Now it is used exclusively for air corps winter clothing It is produced in varying pile lengths depending on whether it is to be used for moderate or extreme cold temperatures The skin part of the shearing is treated and tanned in such a manner that it emerges flame-proof wind-proof and acid-proof. It serves as an outer shell for the garment.

A natural insulating system is provided by sheep shearling wool It is easy to spot an insulated house in the winter because snow remains on the roof. Snow does not melt on a sheep's back so the natural insulating qualities of wool are apparent.

Only other material used in air corps winter garments is wolf fur The parka hoods of their Alaskan suits have small strips of wolf fur around their edges Ice will not accumulate on this type of fur It is sewn to the edge of the hood to prevent ice from forming when the moisture from the breath freezes

LESS DISEASE, MORE MILK

ITHACA, N. Y.—(USE)—The loss of milk production due to Bang's disease in New York state dairy herds is gradually growing smaller as the number of herds under the Bang's disease control program increases, according to Prof. C. G. Bradt of the State College of Agriculture

About 800 additional herds have been enrolled in the control program in the last two months it said making a total of 4 187 herd now under supervision

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD OHIO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1942.

Of course there's no objection to the holder of an A card asking a friend how he happened to get a B card—it's only that the explanation is sometimes embarrassing.

The state liquor board's confidence in a "voluntary rationing" program may have been inspired by noting the success of efforts to prevent over-buying of coffee and gasoline before rationing was started.

Loss of Lives Unavoidable In War

UNITED STATES participation in the war has reached a point at which American forces are engaged in actual fighting in North Africa, in the Solomons, and in sea and air action in other parts of the world.

The "good news" of Allied successes in recent weeks could not have been unmixed with some "bad news," and this came yesterday with announcement of the loss of several U. S. transports in connection with the occupation of North Africa.

Loss of transports also means loss of lives, and it is a sorrowful thought that in this holiday season many American homes are being darkened by the sad tidings that a loved one has been killed, or is missing.

While there has been rather calm acceptance of reports of many thousands of Germans and Russians being killed in single battles, and of frightful casualty totals in Japanese and Chinese fighting, this attitude does not extend to consideration of possible similar losses to American forces.

While human life is more highly valued in America than in some of the enemy countries, in which fanaticism glorifies death in battle, it must eventually be realized that such a war as this cannot be fought without loss of life on both sides.

When this is fully realized there will be no more strikes in war industries and less quibbling about wages, hours, profits, taxes, rationing, and the like—and more concentration of individual and national effort on the one big job of winning the war, so that the sacrifice of lives can be stopped at the earliest possible moment.

More About Snow On Sidewalks

NOT SO many years ago, when sidewalks were in more general use, it was a recognized obligation of the city to have sidewalks in passable condition every morning after a heavy snowfall.

The process was to put several street department employes to work between midnight and daylight, with horse-drawn snowplows, to clear snow from sidewalks on all residential streets.

Just when this was stopped is not recalled, but the practice probably drifted out gradually as automobiles came into more general use and the convenience of pedestrians was disregarded by city officials.

Now, through this winter at least, the subject of clearing sidewalks of snow and ice is attaining lively interest and the League of Women Voters is making the direct approach of asking that city officials do something about it.

All persons are not physically able to shovel snow from sidewalks in front of their homes, nor are they able to find anyone to do this work for them.

Some observers of the situation are of the opinion that, in the absence of horses to pull snowplows, light tractors could be adapted to this purpose without damage to walks. Anyhow, there must be some solution which can be found if officials and citizens are sufficiently interested to give the matter the attention its importance merits.

Announce 'Numbers' Game Suspended

MANY law abiding citizens, who possibly did not know about that profitable illegal enterprise, may have been somewhat surprised to read yesterday that operators of the "numbers" racket in Mansfield have decided to quit business, or at least to "lay off" until they get a clearer idea of how far Chief of Police Bell intends to go in enforcing anti-gambling laws.

The "numbers" game, which drains pennies, nickels and dimes from hundreds of indigents, and near-indigents, each day, and which makes peculiar appeal to superstitious illiterates, has been permitted to operate locally with little if any interference by the present administration, despite the fact that it has been banned in many other cities.

The word has now been passed around to agents and salesplaces that numbers "are off for awhile."

Bakeries, and other businesses dealing in the necessities of life, may note an increase in trade as a result.

There Are Some Such, of Course

SNATCHES of conversation overheard in a downtown restaurant:

"I'm going to Galion tomorrow to see if I can chisel a tank of gasoline. I know a few filling station proprietors over there and should connect."

Later: "Why can't I get more than one cup of coffee? The restaurant across the street will give me all I want."

Same voice, still a little later: "You know, this rationing is going to make downright crooks out of everybody—just like prohibition days."

Which goes to show that it takes all sorts of people to make even a small part of the world—and helps explain why "self government" encounters so many difficulties.

Travel By Train Will Be Difficult

REDUCTION of motor travel has resulted in a swift rise in passenger business for the railroads and the same warning that was given before Thanksgiving—"standing room only" on trains—will probably be even more strongly emphasized through the Christmas holiday period.

Extra trains to accommodate the holiday travelers have been banned by the ODC and railroads must confine their service to regular schedules and equipment.

Added to customary travel, there are now hundreds of thousands of service men using train transportation and a limitless number of government employes moving about over the country on various missions.

It is being made clear to prospective train travelers that much inconvenience must be expected and that there may be unanticipated delays in reaching destinations.

This condition will probably keep at home many people who otherwise would spend the holidays elsewhere, but it is another of the effects of war which cannot be avoided and had best be philosophically accepted.

Who'll Do Essential Farm Work, Elsie Robinson Asks President

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT—Aviators eat carrots. Carrots are supposed to be good for their eyes. They also eat beets and corn, turnips, potatoes, cabbages, tomatoes, asparagus, pork, beef and mutton and several other articles of diet. All of which are as necessary to our war effort as TNT.

Fortunately, this land can produce all these articles in abundance. It can easily feed not only our own soldiers and citizens, but most of the Allied Nations. Countless beef cattle roam our western ranges. Endless treasure of milk, cream and cheese are produced by our dairy cows. There are a few things which we need to import. Coffee, for instance. Some spices. But generally speaking, we're a rich land. A fact which is frequently mentioned in all major political addresses.

But there is one fact which is not mentioned, one fact which is being elaborately overlooked by most of our administrators, and that is this—

None of these products are produced spontaneously. Carrots do not hoe themselves enthusiastically, just because a war is going on. Weeds do not eliminate themselves. Tractors do not leap joyfully and unguided to the fields. Cows do not burst forth into fountains of dairy products. Wheat, oats and barley do not fall like manna from heaven. Someone's got to do the dirty work and do it all the time.

You should know this, Mr. President. You registered as a farmer. And I've no doubt you get a lot of pleasure from the notion. But there's one little question which I should like to ask in all meekness. If you're a farmer, if you have any interest in or sympathy with farmers, why in heck don't you do something about the mess we're in?

I happen to be a farmer too. My husband raises cattle. We haven't much of an outfit, as Western ranches go. But our cattle munch about 5,000 acres of grass. And last spring, in a burst of patriotic enthusiasm, I planted a couple acres of vegetables. I was, I thought, going to feed the soldiers.

But this is war, Mr. Roosevelt. This is war!

And so—

I didn't feed the soldiers.

And I'll never feed the soldiers any more.

For the draft board swept away every farm worker out of this district faster than a flock of locusts. And left all those lovely essential vitamins rotting on the ground. And that's just the beginning.

Last week my neighbor drove his herd of pedigreed dairy stock to the slaughter house. He had spent years in accumulating that herd. But a dairy herd must have milkers. Hitherto milkers have been an accommodating tribe. They'd work for a reasonable wage, that is, until rumors of war plant wages began to get around. Whereupon every barnyard went into a huddle. And decided that it would, as a great, personal favor, continue to milk them there cows for $250 a month and found.

As you may well imagine, this decision did not meet with unmitigated joy by the cow owners. However they agreed. But not for long. For someone hoisted the shipyard wage. And before you could bust a bale of alfalfa the milkers had raised the ante to $300 per month. Which left the dairy men just about $1.75 wherewith to feed themselves and meet Mr. Morgenthau's 987 varieties of taxes.

So my neighbor has sold his blooded herd for any old price he could get. And my vegetables have rotted. And our own cattle are munching around with no takers, although the nation is about to go on a meat ration.

Now I ask you, Mr. Roosevelt, does this make sense? Personally I suspect that most of these agricultural laws were made by a lot of gents whose only acquaintance with the Good Earth was a penthouse windowbox. But maybe I'm wrong. If so, I'm sorry. Only I just wish you'd tell me—

HOW ARE WE GOING TO HOE THOSE CARROTS IF THERE AREN'T ANY CARROTS TO HOE? OR COWS TO MILK? OR BEEF TO SELL?

Interesting idea, isn't it? But you're a farmer. You should know the answer. Or else shoot a lot of the office agriculturalists who think they do.

Emergency Demands Care of Children.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE present emergency has caused a dislocation in American life and social customs so profound and so far-reaching as to cause a great deal of genuine alarm among hygienists. All the more so because it is feared that habits will be formed in great groups of our population which will be continued long after the war is over.

For instance, a mother and father are both employed in war industry and both work on a night shift. They leave one or two or more small children alone in a house or an apartment or a room by themselves. The mother and father come home tired and often a child only four or five years of age is left to shift for itself for breakfast. Social service workers made an inspection of locked cars around a certain munitions works at night and found something like 25 babies all lying asleep in the back seats of cars.

Day Nurseries.

It hardly needs anyone with technical training to point out that this is all wrong. If proper provision cannot be made for such children, one member of the family should give up work and stay home with them. In many cities the civic authorities have provided nurseries for these "war orphans."

My own institution has created a day nursery for the children of married nurses and social service workers who have had to return to duty on account of the drafting of the unmarried ones. There is no use winning the war if we lose all of our civilization and all of the next generation in the effort. Even if it slows up the war effort, the babies have to be taken care of.

Another similar problem is the child of grade school or high school age whose parents are both off working and who is given a key to the home. These are called in my community "The Door Key Kids." They get in the house or apartment in groups of mixed ages and sexes and plenty of things happen. This is the responsibility of the parents, together with the school authorities and also with the industrial plants—to see that the children of such an age are not given license which is beyond their powers of restraint to deal with.

The Breakfast Problem.

The breakfast problem for the child, or children, who are left alone by parents who are both engaged in work is one that has cropped up intermittently in the last two decades. It often leads to very serious nutritional deficiencies. During the days of depression and unemployment, curiously, but obviously enough, it was not as much of a problem as it is in these days of comparative prosperity. Which is quite a price to pay for prosperity.

I feel that all manufacturing plants which employ women workers have the obligation of furnishing nurseries for both day and night shifts presided over by a responsible attendant. Certainly the women war workers can have a reasonable right to expect that their children will be fed and watched over and attended while they are doing war work for their country.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, Dec. 4, 1922.

B. & O. railroad had started terminal and yard improvements on old Cline & Nelson warehouse site at foot of Walnut street, with estimated cost of $50,000 to $75,000.

Clyde Constance moved from 10 Summit street into new home on Maple street.

Jack Thorne returned to Kenyon college to resume studies after visit with his parents here.

Miss Mary Eggert went to Waterloo, Ia., to become manager of millinery department in large store.

Order of Eastern Star held annual memorial service at Masonic temple.

Barn belonging to Homer Culbertson, rear West Sixth street, was destroyed by fire caused by explosion of oil stove.

C. E. Shuplet resigned at Roderick Lean company to take position at Aultman & Taylor company.

H. E. Poffenhaugh opened meat market at corner of Marion and Vennum avenues.

Interpreting the War News

Lives Lost In African Invasion Must Be Counted In War Costs

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

AMERICAN and British naval losses in the expedition to North Africa, as announced in London and Washington, demonstrate again the cost of invasion, which was so conclusively proved at Dieppe.

It means that the road to victory is not going to be smooth and that the United Nations face a powerful and resourceful enemy.

Yet losses were expected in the African operations. According to A. V. Alexander, British first lord of the admiralty, they were less than had been reckoned, in view of the scale of the expedition "and are considered light."

There were some 500 transports and merchant ships in the great armada, under heavy naval escort. Most of them reached their destination, although they sailed through submarine-infested waters.

American losses were placed at five transports sunk and five other vessels damaged. The British announced the loss of 10 ships of various sizes.

MOST of the losses apparently occurred in the landing operations, after the ships had reached Africa. The conclusion is that the Germans were taken by surprise and that their submarine packs were not on the alert.

It is a tribute to the careful planning of the expedition that German intelligence was unaware of it, since one part of the armada crossed the Atlantic from the United States and two came down from Britain.

Once the surprise was over, it is safe to assume that the Axis concentrated its submarines in the northwest Africa zone. As Alexander pointed out, the Allies have to keep their forces supplied by sea and further losses must be expected.

HOWEVER, the losses are not all on one side. It is a bitter struggle in which the advantage does not necessarily lie with Axis submarines. While the Allies have to keep the forces in Africa supplied and are vulnerable to underseas attack, the Axis similarly has to supply its own forces across the Mediterranean.

The British admiralty also announced the sinking of four supply ships and two destroyers in an attack on an Axis convoy bound for Tunisia. In addition, an undisclosed number of Axis submarines have been sunk by sea or air attack. Alexander said that more than 30 attacks have caused destruction of or damage to U-boats. It was announced two weeks ago that 13 Axis submarines had been sunk off North Africa.

It means that the British, having mostly overcome the submarine menace off the British Isles, have shifted their anti-submarine operations to Mediterranean and African waters.

Peace Drive By Hitler Expected

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Hans Habe, predicting, in a prominent December magazine, that Herr Hitler shortly will launch a "blitz" campaign for a negotiated, compromise peace, is doing only his own personal guessing, of course.

It isn't likely that Prophet Habe can read the Fuehrer's mind from away over on this side of the Atlantic. It also is evident that Adolf didn't reveal his plan to him confidentially, hoping for a favorable advance notice, because this notice distinctly is othewise. The whole article's a warning to the United Nations that the only safe way to negotiate with the Nazis is to lick 'em flat.

Nevertheless, it's obvious that Brother Habe (I hesitate to refer to him as "Herr" Habe just now) has been a close student of the situation, and it's probable that a commentator whose name begins with "Hans" is exceptionally qualified to draw conclusions relative to Teutonic scheming.

Parenthetically, here we have it again—

ALL Germans shouldn't be condemned on account of Herr Hitler. Some of 'em are all right.

And, if Comrade Habe is correct, it appears that this latter kind are the folk who, in his very own dooryard, are helping to scare Adolf into making the best terms he can get without going on to the finish he originally had scheduled.

Heat May Be On.

Hans wasn't needed to inform the rest of the civilized world of anti-Hitler sentiment throughout the areas previously conquered by Berlin's forces. Those regions' sizzlings have been no news any of the time, but they've needed some internal heat to stimulate 'em. Hans thinks it's being generated, and there are hints that it really is starting to manifest itself.

Then Germany's Italian support began to peter out.

It never had amounted to much. Finally it frazzled to a point where, as of the present juncture, the Nazis are reported to be fortifying their border anti-Fascistically.

Fortifying AGAINST 'em is going some.

The Japs are pro-Jap exclusively.

Now it starts to transpire that the German military class is anti-Hitler.

Adolf himself doesn't belong to it. It's an aristocratic bunch and he's a plebian.

If his internal organization is threatened with going flooey, where does he get off?

The Fuehrer is supposed to want Spain to take charge of his negotiated peace move. Awhile back Spanish Caudillo Franco unquestionably would have been willing to act as his spokesman, but not if his back's to the wall, as Caudillo Franco seemingly thinks it is.

Pope Pius, too, is suggested as a possible negotiator.

It's presumable that he wants peace. On Adolf's terms, though.

What Kind of Peace?

Just what sort of a bargain the Fuehrer has in his bean is problematic.

He seemingly is bent on keeping Germany going as an independent institution—with himself as Fuehrer.

His Fuehrership is the essential consideration.

The nut is—

This war is being fought over—

1. Herr Hitler, not Germany.

2. Benito Mussolini, who no longer signifies.

3. The Japs, who still are raising Hades.

It isn't the Germans, who can be disposed of. It isn't the Italians, who are respectable enough, anyway. Basically it's the Japs who have got to be exterminated—not the average Japs, but their military aggregation.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

(Second of two articles on U. S. feeding of foreign nations.)

WASHINGTON—Governor Herbert H. Lehman, as director of foreign relief and rehabilitation, is commander-in-chief of the forces that will fight starvation, disease and post-war panics in the whole wide world.

In 1928, Lehman stepped out of a $2,000,000-a-year job as partner in the investment banking firm of Lehman Bros., to run for lieutenant governor on the same ticket that elevated Roosevelt to the governorship. At the end of his second term in 1932, he became the first lieutenant governor in 30 years to succeed to the governorship and for four consecutive terms (the last for four years, following a change in New York state's gubernatorial tenure law) he held that office.

He was the most active lieutenant governor the state had ever seen. Why? Because Governor Roosevelt, occupied with national politics, knew that he could turn over the reins to Lehman with the certainty that his lieutenant would drive the course just the same as he would himself.

THROUGHOUT the years, there has been little change in that relationship. On nearly all social and economic reforms, the president and his successor have seen eye to eye. In 1936, when Governor Lehman announced that he would not run again, the president made public a personal appeal for him to continue in office.

Aside from the fact that he has successfully steered New York state through the "starvation" era that followed the 1929 crash, the quiet, retiring, hard-working governor is eminently equipped for the job of world relief and rehabilitation that has been handed him.

BEFORE he ever gave up his millions-a-year income to enter public life, he was one of New York City's outstanding philanthropists, but one who shied from any publicity about his beneficiencies. The list of the national and international charity and relief boards on which he has served is endless.

He is no stranger to the problems of war either. He came out of World war I a colonel and served a stint as assistant secretary of war. In earlier years, he was a textile manufacturer, social worker and labor mediator.

Bald, heavy-joweled, and black-browed, the 64-year-old director of FRR is one of the hardest workers of any man in public life. He rarely accepts social invitations and almost never entertains. With his wife (and President Roosevelt, for that matter) he shares a keenness for deep-sea fishing, which is out for the duration. When he can find time, which he can't these days, he enjoys a game of golf. Otherwise, his hobby is 16-hours-a-day devotion to the job on hand.

As Others See It

Can This Be True!

TODAY IN HISTORY

George Washington took an affectionate farewell of his officers at Fraunces' Tavern at the corner of Broad and Pearl streets in New York City, on this date, 1783. From New York, Washington proceeded to Annapolis where he made a simple speech to the score or so of members of Congress and laid down the command which he had borne with such skill and patience through eight long years of trial.

A Farmer's Diary

Home-Made Fertilizer

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

NITRATES are hard to get, in war time, for such a use as fertilizer, but most farmers don't need much commercial fertilizer, anyhow, if they'd only use what their own place can yield," declared a modern farmer, looking up from repairing fence beneath his large straw shed.

I counted 25 large Holstein dairy cattle and remarked about their size.

"I leave them out here in this shed, except at milking time," he said. "I put down plenty of clean straw for bedding, and there's solid concrete below. I fixed this shed, myself, to save the manure. An average ton of farm manure contains 10 pounds of nitrogen, 5 of phosphoric acid and 10 of potash. The nitrogen from chickens and sheep is twice as high as from other stock. In a year a thousand pound live-weight of cattle will make 15 tons of manure; horses, 12 tons, 18 tons from a thousand pounds of sheep and 4.2 tons from equal weight of chickens.

"The cattle trample this well, and mix in straw and litter. Every week I scatter 300 lbs. of 20% superphosphate over the top. That gives it plenty of phosphoric acid and keeps it from heating. I don't buy any fertilizer, and my crops are as good as any of my neighbors. Whenever I can, I work in a cover crop that'll yield humus and nitrogen—such as soybeans, plowed under.

"But I maintain that most farmers don't know what wealth is in their own barnyards and beneath their feet—they aren't engineering things right, or their land wouldn't get less fertile, but more fertile every year. Why, the Chinese have been raising crops for thousands of years, and their land will still support them! What's the matter that American farms are not as fertile as they were 20 years ago?

"A man's home ought to be where he finds the most interest and pleasure and profit. Lots of men are getting out of farming, to get wartime wages in factories. If that's the way they figure, let 'em go, I say! I'm stayin' right here, and findin' out all I can about how to make mine the best farm in this county!"

UPHOLDS COURT IN DAMAGE SUIT

ASHLAND—The Ohio Supreme court has returned the suit of Austin Moherman against Harold Donley and Alfred Nickels of the Nickels Bakery to the Ashland county court of common pleas for retrial.

During trial of the suit in common pleas court Moherman sought damages as result of an automobile collision in March, 1939. Donley, driver of a bakery truck, was dismissed and Nickels held as sole defendant. Claiming this was done through misrepresentation, the plaintiff subsequently had Nickels dismissed because the Nickels Bakery, Inc., and not he, was the owner of the truck, and Common Pleas Judge H. E. Culbertson reinstated Donley as defendant.

The fifth district court of appeals reversed the lower court and dismissed Donley from the case. The supreme court in its decision sustained the Ashland county court and reverses the appeals court.

Draw Up New Plat Books For Cities, Townships, Villages

Richland county will soon have new township, village and city plats, despite the fact there has been no appropriation for this purpose—thanks to draftsmen and surveyors in the office of County Engineer H. C. Sword who donated much of their time.

Tracings have already been made from aerial photographs, a departure from the old method, of 13 of the county's 18 townships and all of the villages with the exception of Plymouth, which is soon to be made. The end of this year will see further progress on this program, being carried on in spare time and during hours donated by the employes, Sword said. The aerial-photograph are a more efficient method of showing farm lands, Sword emphasized.

The last tracings, from which township maps were made, were made in 1911, while the last tracings for village maps were made in 1916. Principal changes evident since that time are in the location of railroads, highways and streams, Sword pointed out.

Several years ago appropriations were made for the purpose of making such tracings and plats, with 1938 being the date such an appropriation had been expected. It was not forthcoming at that time, Sword said and for one reason and another, including the present emergency curtailments, no appropriation has been made since with two-thirds of the expenses of engineers' department comes from auto licenses and gasoline tax, under the present set-up, it is probable that no extra funds will be available for any other than the most urgent uses.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT 'SHARE MEAT'

OWI Gives Highlights of Plan For Voluntary Cut in Civilian Consumption.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Any questions about the government's share-the-meat program?

Here's a question - and - answer summary prepared by the regional Office of War Information giving the highlights of the voluntary program:

Q. What is the "share-the-meat program?"

A. It is a national campaign to induce the American people to restrict their meat consumption in the interest of the war effort.

Q. Who is sponsoring this program?

A. The United States government. It might be added that more agencies of the government are officially behind this campaign than any other civilian war program yet undertaken. These include: army, navy, state department, lend - lease administration, board of economic warfare, war production board, Office of Price administration, and the department of agriculture

Q How was the program initiated?

A By the government's food requirements committee, which asked the office of war information to organize and promote it.

Q What is the consumer asked to do?

A. Each adult is asked to eat no more than 2½ pounds of meat each week; children from 6 to 12 years old, no more than 1½ pounds, and children under six years old, no more than ¼ pound.

Q. I read recently that this year was one of record meat production. Why, then, should we be asked to eat less meat?

A. That is right. This year will set a record for meat output. Farmers are producing 15 per cent more meat this year than they did last But the year is one of record demand.

Q. Will you explain this increased demand?

A. This is caused by three factors: (1) requirements of our armed forces; (2) requirements of our fighting allies through our lend-lease administration, and (3) increased purchasing power of the American people, and hence their increased ability to buy and consume meat.

Q Didn't our military men eat meat just the same when they were in civilian life?

A. Certainly, but they did not eat as much on the average. For example, in 1936, families with incomes of less than $500 a year consumed about 70 pounds of meat per person per year, which is less than 1 4 pounds per week, while families with incomes of $5,000 a year and up, consumed 260 pounds per person. Moreover, the military life demands heavier-than-normal meat consumption to maintain a maximum of bodily health and vigor.

Q. Isn't this voluntary ration a pretty drastic cut?

A. No. During the last 10 years, our per capita consumption has ranged from 125 pounds a year to 260 pounds, depending. upon consumer purchasing power.

Q. How did the government arrive at the figure 2½ pounds a week?

A. Best estimates place the year's meat production at slightly more than 24 billion pounds Calculating the increased civilian consumption due to swollen purchasing power, it is estimated that we will consume 21 billion pounds here at home, if allowed to buy all we want. It is estimated that our military and lend lease requirements will be about 6½ billion pounds There we have 27½ billion pounds required, and 24 billion pounds of supplies, which spells a shortage of about 3½ billion pounds. That 3½ billion shortage must come out of the 21 billion civilians are demanding, thus cutting civilian supply to 17½ billion pounds. This shrinks 10 per cent before it takes the form of retail cuts, hence the retail supply will be about 15¾ billion pounds. Divide this among 128 million people not in the armed forces, and make allowance for infants, children, the aged and invalids, and the ration as stated is the result.

Q. Is this situation as to our present supply and demand responsible for the shortage of many kinds of meat, which we are now experiencing?

A. It is. We now have a situation where there is less choice, less meat, and great inconvenience in purchasing. Our military establishments and the lend-lease are making their huge purchases right now.

Q. Why is it that some cuts and certain kinds of meat, like beef, are scarcer than others?

A. Because war-employed people with more money are demanding the better cuts and the more popular meats. Furthermore, the supply has been restricted by the office of price administration since October 1.

Q. How was that done?

A. On September 15, the War Production board delegated to the OPA the authority to ration meat. It also gave OPA authority to control the distribution On October 1, the OPA issued an order restricting the deliveries of the packers and slaughterers during the last quarter of this year to certain percentages of their deliveries last year during the corresponding three months. These restrictions were made to insure military and lend-lease supply.

Q What were those restrictions?

A. The packers and slaughterers, the smaller ones producing 500 000 pounds or less a quarter were restricted to the same volume of business they did last year in the same quarter. The larger packers' deliveries were restricted as follows: beef 80 per cent pork, 75 per cent, lamb and mutton, 95 per cent; veal, 100 per cent. On November 9, the beef deliveries were cut 10 per cent more to 70 per cent.

Q. Are all kinds of meat counted in the suggested voluntary ration?

A. No Poultry and fish are not included. Nor are cuts like tongue, liver, hearts, kidneys, knuckles and ox-joints and tails, and the so-called variety meats.

Q Why are they not included? They are meat, aren't they?

A. Yes, but they are not considered adaptable for packing and shipping for military use, and the demand for them is comparatively low.

Q. Is this restriction on our meat eating going to be a severe hardship?

A Actually, it will not If the family diet is carefully selected, we shall have enough meat to insure good health and physical energy. In fact, we'll still be eating much more meat than the people of our allied nations.

Q. What is the meat situation in other countries?

A. In Holland, the meat ration is 9 ounces per person; in Belgium, 5 ounces; in Germany, 12½ ounces; in Italy, 5½ to 4½ ounces per week. In Britain, the ration is one pound per week, plus two ounces of bacon and whatever canned meat can be bought, if it is available. Moreover, the so-called fresh variety cuts are scarce or almost unobtainable, and the war has depleted the British fish supply. We still fare better as to our civilian meat supply than the people of any other nation across the ocean.

Q. How will the share-the-meat program affect restaurants and public eating places?

A. There are certain recommendations for its application to restaurants. Public eating establishments should make half-portions available at reduced prices. Their menu cards should solicit co-operation. They should use cards and stickers and flyers to advise people of the raw-meat weight of their portions, reduce the number of meat dishes, and emphasize meatless dishes, or dishes of limited meat content, and serve more poultry, variety meats, fish and meat alternates like cheese and beans.

Q. Does the meat you eat in a restaurant count against your 2½ pounds?

A. Yes, you are supposed to deduct it.

Q. If OPA has the authority to ration meat, why is this not being done.

A. OPA has announced that meat will be rationed, probably sometime in February However, this requires many weeks of preparation, and it cannot be done now. The meat shortage, however, is so serious, that the government asks all citizens to support the share-the-meat program until rationing can be inaugurated.

'SLOPPY' SMOKERS GUILTY

LOS ANGELES, Cal. — (U P) — More fires are caused by "sloppy" smokers, especially in bed, than by children with matches, according to the Fire Commission. In a single month 25 fires in Los Angeles, out of a total of 76 were caused by "sloppy" smokers, the report stated: 13 by juveniles, and 25 by grown-ups

Gives Tips to Help Alleviate Doctor Shortage

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—(INS)—Because of the shortage of physicians, Dr. John W. Ferree, head of the Indian state board of health, has made six suggestions to the general public. They are:

1. Take care of your health.
2. Go to a physician; don't make him come to you unless it's absolutely necessary.
3. Don't call your physician at night unless necessary. See him during the day.
4. If a doctor must visit your home, telephone his office in the morning, so that he can route his calls.
5. If your family doctor is called to service, choose another physician immediately; don't wait until an emergency to try to find one. Expectant mothers should arrange for delivery early in pregnancy.
6. And, finally, be patient.

EACH DAY OF THE WEEK ..... TO .....

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

On Page 1 of the paper each day you will find a list of the advertisements to be checked that day.

All you have to do is to decide each day which Large Ad, which Medium Ad and which Small Ad you think will do the advertiser the most good. Just write three names on this blank each day.

$750.00 in awards go to those readers whose selections are nearest to what the majority of readers think. Every week is a separate survey with a dozen or more cash awards each week.

Every member of any family may send in one answer each week and there are many awards each week, but only one award for a good answer will go to any one family in any one week.

I THINK THESE ADS WILL DO THE ADVERTISERS THE MOST GOOD.

	LARGE ADS	MEDIUM ADS	SMALL ADS

You are NOT required to write a letter to receive an award.

The awards are decided on the selections above. We would really appreciate it, though, if you would write a note saying what you DO NOT LIKE and . . . also . . . WHY YOU LIKED some of the good ads.

We sincerely want your suggestions and ideas of how we may improve our advertising service for your benefit. Write your letter in your own way! It's the thoughts and suggestions that matter. You are not being "judged" by your letters. Actually they have nothing to do with the awards . . . but . . . they will be helpful by giving additional information to our merchants.

Your criticisms and suggestions will be given to the merchants to help them to improve their advertisements BUT the merchants will NOT be given the names of those who write the letters. This is so you may say just what you really think without embarrassment.

DINA CASHMAN + + +

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER I

"Dina, will you help me with my composition?"

"Well." Dina glanced over her shoulder, turned back to her dishpan. "What's it about?"

"She give us three subjects," said the overgrown boy at the kitchen table. "'My Christmas Holidays,' 'What the New Year Means to Me,' and 'The Effect of the Crusades Upon the Universities of Medieval Europe'."

Dina laughed quietly.

"I certainly wouldn't take that last one," she said. To herself she added, "I laughed then. I'll bet everything's going to come out all right."

"I don't think anyone'll take that one," said Arthur.

"Take 'What the New Year Means to Me,' Art, and make it full of manly spirit and everything. Ambition, you know, and steadfast endeavor."

"Oh, garsh!" Arthur objected, appalled at this generous order. Shabby, dirty, disheveled, he sprawled over the end of the kitchen table, a stubby pencil in the large fingers whose nails were black and split; his sweater, worn into holes, his jaws moved rhythmically upon a wad of gum. "Tell me how to start it, Dina," he begged.

"Well, lessee," Dina mused. "How about 'The New Year offers to us all a chance'—no, make that an opportunity, Artie—but you're one that's been to high," the girl broke off to remind him. "You ought to know twice as much as I do about school."

"Well, I don't," said Arthur, miserable with boredom and sleepiness. "And I wish I didn't have to go!"

"Pop wants you to amount to something." Dina said automatically. In her heart, to some power undefined, she said, "Oh, make it not true, make it not true! Oh, I'll always be good—I'll be different—I'll get a job and work and make something of myself if only you'll make it not true!"

"Dina," said a dirty-faced little girl of twelve who was writing numbers upon the pages of a battered exercise book. "Don't Pop want you to amount to something, too?"

"I guess he'd like all of us to amount to something, Dooley," Dina answered. "But I had a kind of queer time getting my schooling, and I wasn't ready for second-year high when we got here three years ago, and I'm not ready yet! Pop was sick then, and I worked in Muzzy's and I had only had a quarter term's high when we left Arkansas, and then we were a whole year down near Tombstone when I couldn't get in to school, and then in Bakersfield. Then Donny was born and Mama needed me."

The children—there were four of them in the kitchen—had lost interest. Arthur, who was, at 17, next to 19-year-old Dina in age, had dropped off into a light sleep; Dooley was carrying on an altercation with a younger child as to the possession of a small hairless doll; and Myrna, 14, a slender, proud girl continued silently to dry dishes.

The kitchen was not a large room, but it was the only one of the four in the establishment that was available for daily waking life. The others were bedrooms.

In one there was a three-quarter bed for the accommodation of the father, John Cashman, and his wife, Ethel, and a crib for Donny Cashman, aged three. In another Arthur had a cot, and his two smallest sisters, Elner and Lou, shared a sofa bed. Dooley, Dina, and Myrna had as their chamber the third room, purportedly the parlor.

The women and girls of the family were sensitive upon the point that there was no bathroom in the house and that the men were obliged to wash and shave at the dark, small zinc sink in the kitchen.

The Cashmans had settled in this rather grimy strip of wide, fruit-filled Santa Clara valley less from choice than from necessity. They had not prospered on their wanderings westward, through New Mexico and Arizona into California.

Now, some 50 miles south of San Francisco, with seasonal jobs in lumber mills, canneries, orchards all about them, with seas of fruit blooms and wild flowers in spring, cooling fogs and winds all summer long, winters free of snow, they were as well satisfied as they were likely to be anywhere.

Their home was a cheaply built, dilapidated shanty. But they were as well housed as many of the families in the neighborhood and better housed than some, and they were migrants; migrants in plans, wishes, ideas, and often, as well, physically in continual transference. Any inconveniences were dismissed from consideration with the philosophical thought that the family would not be long in any place anyway.

As the most used apartment—for the bedrooms were dark, cluttered, and small — the kitchen wore a battered air that no cleaning and no attempt to introduce order ever dissipated. It had been hopelessly cheap from the beginning; it was 17 years old now, and every day of those 17 years had taken its toll.

Light was supplied by a solitary electric bulb dangling from the center of the ceiling. The stove was a four-burner gas range whose three remaining legs were supplemented by a brickbat; its plates were blackened and broken; its dripping pan was burned into rusty holes.

The floor was greasy and splintered; at the window dangled two dark gray shreds of filmy curtaining; dead flies and odds and ends littered the sills.

Through the muddy bath of the lukewarm dishwater went the plates, mismatched and chipped, and odd glasses, cups with handles and cups without.

Dina was paying small attention to these details tonight. For one thing she was used to them: they seemed unimportant. What was important — or rather what had always been important until this last anxious week—was her own beauty, of which she took great care, and the interests of her own little group of friends.

Frances Tack, who worked with her in the grocery, the Mulligan boys and the Beatty boys, Ward Binn and his sister Melda, and Tom O'Connor, the nicest boy in the neighborhood, who was in love with Dina but who had gone up to the lumber mills in Westwood for a time—these were her associates.

Her life, rather than being compared with any other standards, was to her succesful or a failure only as it seemed good or seemed unfortunate to them.

Dina had been earning money since her 17th year; she always had handed most of her pay envelope over to her mother and often saw her father take it in his turn, but for some time now she had demanded of her parents tacitly—for it had never been put into words between them—that she be given certain liberties in return.

There was not to be as much questioning and criticizing as there had been, nor insulting threats of whippings or locking doors. Dina loved to dance, and there was plenty of night clubs and highway restaurants in the neighborhood where chop suey or chow mein and music and lights were available. Home was a pigpen, acceptable and even comfortable, but still a pigpen, and work was dull and underpaid.

But nights belonged to youth and freedom, and Dina Cashman was the last girl alive to surrende them. Hers was a courageous nature; she had always been a leader, in mischief when she was a child in plans, in the forming of clubs and arranging entertainments in grammar school.

Now in this underprivileged group, with its shoddy amusements, its dependence upon radio and comic papers and cheap magazines and the cosmetics of the "dime" store, its gum and gossip, its eagerness for life and thrills and change and adventure on any terms, she was a leader still. They all waited for her, listened to her, laughed at her, and with her. For until lately Dina had been always laughing.

Tonight she helped Myrna finish the dishes and turned about to look at the clock. Quarter to 8. In half an hour she could tumble the younger girls into bed, warn the older ones to be on their good behavior until Mama and Pop came home at half-past nine, and be on her way to lights and excitement and companionship.

Meanwhile, with the dishes done and the kitchen in its nearest approach to order, she must get dressed. Dina went into her bedroom, lifted her small brother Donny, 3 years old and heavily and moistily asleep, to carry him to his crib in his own room, and lighted the one light in the room by which to beautify herself to the best of her power.

There were two beds in here; one full-sized and the other a cot. Dooley usually slept on the cot and Dina and Myrna in the bed. But if any girl had a fever or a cold or was coughing distressfully, she took the cot and the others the bed. There was no space for a bureau even had the girls possessed one.

She sat down on the foot of the bed, reaching down under it for a cardboard shoe box. In this box were an old hairbrush with the bristles pretty well worn away, a tangle of fine safety pins, several lipsticks in various stages of use, powder boxes, flat mud-colored powder puffs, wisps of tissue paper stained with nail polish and rouge, nets, manicure files, curling wires, and a dozen other beautifiers.

Besides the box on the floor rested a round tin can marked "Theatrical Creme" with the price mark of 29 cents still clear upon it in black penciling.

Dina pushed her thick hair back from her face, smeared cheeks and chin and brow with the cream. A sodden towel was a part of her equipment; its limp touch and its reek of cheap perfume were essential to her dressing routine.

When she had finished with it she took a broken angle of mirror from the top of the chest of drawers and stood up under the light, carefully training her thick dark brows with a small comb, marking her lips into luscious redness, powdering thoroughly with sharp little blows of the soggy puff, coaxing the vital youth and springiness of her hair into delicate spirals and curls about her forehead.

After this she unwound the cheap cotton kimona that had been wrapped tightly about her for these operations, and took a silk dress from a hook. In her hand it looked what it was—a garment cheap and badly made.

But once on the firm curves and lines of the young body it looked better, and when Dina had snapped a clasp of imitation brilliants upon it, had placed a dashing little hat upon her mop of tawny hair, had slipped her arms into a brown coat whose collar still showed some signs of having once been creamy fur, she looked like a thousand — like a million other American girls who were that night sallying from homes almost if not quite so humble; pretty, smart, happy.

Dina won a few moments of forgetfulness as she made her way between the dark shanties of the neighborhood, past the odorous dump and over the railway tracks, and so to a paved and lighted street dismal enough in itself but by contrast a glittering thoroughfare of delights.

Here were restaurants and dance halls and saloons and movies and the high school and the hospital. It was heaven to escape from the odors and the crowding, the noises and the disorders of home into this atmosphere of excitement and light. The candy store and the drugstore gushed brilliance, and many of the other stores, though closed, were lighted, and sports clothes and hats and purses and underwear were displayed in garish splendor. The opaque windows of the big downstairs swimming pool of the "Y" glowed whitely.

We Talk To You In Our Ads

Are we saying what you want to hear — the way you want to hear it?

We will appreciate your telling us—so we can talk to you the way you think we should.

It's very easy for you to help.

Just write down three names each day on a Community Survey Answer Form and send it in at the end of the week.

Special awards go to those readers whose selections are nearest to what the majority of the community voted for.

When you do it once, you will find it interesting and you will continue.

And — you will be helping us to write our ads the way you want them.

Some of us have ads every day, some only once a week. You will find a list each day divided into three groups, LARGE, MEDIUM and SMALL, and you only need to select which you think is the best in each group that day.

BIG TIRES HELP CYCLES IN SAND

Army Uses Them in Desert Action and Finds They Do the Trick.

FORT KNOX, Ky.—(INS)—Development of a revolutionary new tire which makes it possible for a military motorcycle to "ride circles around peeps or jeeps in desert sand" was announced today by the Armored Force school.

Brig. Gen. Stephen G. Henry, school commandant, said that the tire is being used by the school's motorcycle department, itself the largest motorcycle mechanics school in the United States, and that one entire armored division trained in the California desert now is being equipped with it.

Lt. Col. William E. Watters, motorcycle department director, and Maj. Donald H. Graham, his executive, said development of the new tire had jumped the motorcycle from the least maneuverable military vehicle to the most maneuverable.

"The surface of the tire spreads out," Major Graham said "effecting tremendous flotation in sand." The new tire was built especially to increase mobility in the desert and has been approved by an Armored Force desert board.

Col. Watters said that two Armored Force School officers and two enlisted instructors had gone to Michigan City, Ind., recently to test the tire on the Lake Michigan sand dunes.

"It did everything we expected and more," he said. "It took the motorcycles up the lea side of the dunes with hardly a pause for breath."

THEATERS

Musical Spectacle.

The vaudeville stage in its heyday prior to World war I is brought to the screen with all of its old-time charm in Judy Garland's first adult feature "For Me and My Gal," opening Saturday at the Ohio. Gene Kelly, the New York stage sensation of "Pal Joey," appears opposite Judy and the cast includes George Murphy, Ben Blue, Keenan Wynn and many other familiar players. The story deals with a vaudeville pair who long for "big time" until war intervenes. Many of the popular song hits of yesterday are featured including "Oh You Beautiful Doll" and "How You Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm?"

Tropical Drama.

The sultry drama of the tropics "White Cargo" that thrilled theater audiences some years ago reaches the Madison screen Friday with Hedy Lamarr and Walter Pidgeon in the leading roles. Frank Morgan, Richard Carlson and Reginald Owen are in the cast of the production that deals with the danger that confronts white men when the mysterious tropical beauty "Tondelayo," is around.

Comedy-Melodrama.

"Top Sergeant" the Ritz attraction opening today is an action-packed melodrama of an underworld rat who tried to use a U. S. army uniform to conceal his tracks. Leo Carrillo and Andy Devine are in the cast also Elyse Knox and Alan Hale jr. Carrillo and Devine play hard-bitten army non-coms who are continually getting stripped of their stripes over mischievous clashes with regulations. Don Terry appears as a hard-boiled sergeant. Don "Red" Barry is starred in the second feature "Sundown Kid."

Variety Entertainment.

"Hi Neighbor," the Park attraction sets forth the semi-comic efforts of a college professor to keep a school for hillbillies strictly for that purpose. Jean Parker and John Archer head the cast which includes an array of radio entertainers including Lulubelle and Scotty. "Flying Tigers," the second feature deals with the adventures of the American Volunteer corps organized by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek to bag enemy planes in the Burma skyways.
